and open the door to critical conversations about policies and practices related to mathematics teacher recruitment preparation and professional development among other topics Every reader will develop new perspectives as they learn how one institution is engaging with Indigenous perspectives while other countries struggle with an insufficient supply of certified teachers This book clearly demonstrates challenges constraints nuances and complexities to initiating and maintaining improvement across systems to enhance the work and spaces of mathematics teachers within different historical cultural social and political contexts This volume also generates ideas and opportunities for leaders policymakers and teacher educators to consider and learn from international colleagues about different approaches to mathematics teacher education practice and policy Undoubtedly debates about standards content and experiences in programs and accountability structures such as accreditation will continue It is clear from the insights in this volume that strengthening mathematics teacher education will require stronger collaborations frameworks policies infrastructure and investments on a global scale and it will be critical to collaborate with and learn from colleagues in international settings These conversations will require reciprocity interdependence and resilience as we pursue the ultimate goal of equipping the field of mathematics teacher education Kathryn Chval Dean College of Education Professor of Mathematics Education University of Illinois Chicago

International Handbook of Education Systems John Cameron, 1983 Sharing Higher Education's Promise beyond the Few in Sub-Saharan Africa Peter Darvas, Shang Gao, Yijun Shen, Bilal Bawany, 2017-11-15 Despite a spectacular expansion of the higher education sector in Sub Saharan Africa the supply of tertiary education has generally failed to keep pace with demand and the region continues to lag all other regions in terms of access to tertiary education This is in part a consequence of deeply entrenched patterns of inequitable access to higher education and the perpetuation of what researchers refer to as elite systems To date access to tertiary education in Sub Saharan Africa has unduly benefitted students drawn from the region's wealthiest households and overall enrollment remains disproportionately male and metropolitan These factors stifle the catalytic potential of higher education corroding its potential for driving economic growth and sustaining poverty reduction Instead patterns of access to tertiary education have generally reinforced and reproduced social inequality instead of eroding its pernicious social and economic effects This report aims to inform an improved understanding of equity in tertiary enrollment in Sub Saharan African countries and to examine the extent to which inequity functions as a bottleneck inhibiting the ability of African universities to effectively drive improvements in overall quality of life and economic competitiveness In our survey of the evidence we also aim to identify which policies most effectively address the challenge of promoting equity of access in SSA tertiary education systems In order to achieve these objectives the report collects generates and analyzes empirical evidence on patterns of equity examines the underlying causes of inequity and evaluates government policies for addressing inequity The Development of Education Systems in Postcolonial Africa F. J. Nieuwenhuis, 1996 This study traces educational policy development and implementation in the postcolonial era in eight sub Saharan African countries A basic premise is that the education system in any country is a result of interacting forces in the unique historical development of the country The volume analyzes the forces in terms of their relevance and applicability to the South African situation especially as far as donor funding is concerned The countries of the study are Botswana Kenya Lesotho Malawi Swaziland Tanzania Zambia and Zimbabwe Chapters of the book include 1 Background to the Study 2 Educational Development in Postcolonial Africa 3 Donor Aid to Africa 4 Policy Options for Educational Development in Africa and 5 Policy Options for Donor Aid Six tables and 14 figures accompany the text Two appendices and a 44 item bibliography conclude the text EH
