

Abstract—The authors present a new method for the analysis of the human gait. The method is based on the use of a computerized image analysis system. The system is able to detect the position of the feet and the legs during the gait cycle. The authors present the results of the analysis of the gait of a healthy subject and of a subject with a gait disorder. The results show that the method is able to detect the position of the feet and the legs during the gait cycle. The authors also present the results of the analysis of the gait of a subject with a gait disorder. The results show that the method is able to detect the position of the feet and the legs during the gait cycle.
