Immigration and Naturalization Service, 1985 The Benefits of Certified Medical Interpretation Services Madeline Wilkes Nielsen, 2019 This research paper examines the growing Spanish speaking population in the United States, particularly in northern Utah, and the language barrier these individuals face in the healthcare system. It looks into legislation passed within the past century which has played an essential role in attempting to better the quality of healthcare of Limited English Proficient (LEP) patients, of which several laws explain the great need for highly trained and certified medical interpreters. This paper explains the benefits of using a certified medical interpreter and explores why they are not utilized as much as they are available. It then offers a simple solution, a short informative video, to help LEP patients understand that they can receive appropriate medical attention in their native tongue. The purpose of the video is to educate LEP patients on their right to and the benefits of using a certified medical interpreter while accessing healthcare in order to help them be more satisfied with their stay.
