challenging power In direct contrast Compound Containment demonstrates that these conventional studies are flawed without a sound understanding of the multilayered aspects of containment strategy in great power politics Since economic capacity and military power are intimately linked to one another countering a challenging power requires addressing both economic and military dimensions Nonetheless this nexus of security and economy in a reigning power's response to a challenging power cannot be explained by traditional theories that dominate research in international security Author Dong Jung Kim fills a gap in the scholarship on great power competition by investigating when a reigning power will make its military containment of a challenging power compound by simultaneously employing restrictive economic measures Its main theoretical claims are corroborated by an analysis of key historical cases of reigning power challenging power competition This book also offers policy prescriptions for the United States by examining whether the United States is in a position to complement military containment of China with restrictive economic measures
