

Question Number
4 (c)		Explain why events in Europe in the years 1945-47 led to the Cold War.
		Target: Causation/recall of knowledge (A01/A02)
Level	Mark	Descriptor
	0	No rewardable material.
1	1-3	Simple or generalised statements of causation. The student makes statements which lack any supporting contextual knowledge or makes unsupported generalisations. e.g. Tension arose at Yalta and Potsdam. • 1 mark for one simple statement. • 2 marks for two simple statements. • 3 marks for three or more simple statements.
2	4-9	Explains why causes led to changes. The student supports the statement with relevant contextual knowledge to show how the event led to the stated outcome. e.g. The Soviet Union wanted to ensure that it had a buffer zone in eastern Europe and, in addition, did not want Germany to recover. Stalin kept Soviet forces in eastern Europe after 1945 and ensured that Communist Parties won the elections in the countries of that area. Communism seemed to be spreading and there was little the USA could do to stop this – apart from go to war and it did not want this. Therefore, it challenged Stalin by other means – thus there was a war between the two sides without it becoming ‘hot’. • 4-5 marks for one developed argument. • 6-7 marks for two developed arguments. • 8-9 marks for three developed arguments or more.
3	10-12	Explains how factors are interlinked or prioritises factors. e.g. ... Imposing communist governments was perhaps the most important reason why a Cold War developed. It was also clear that there was great political and economic chaos in Europe and if stability was restored then the USA felt that communism would not spread further, but this could only be done by peaceful intervention yet at the same time challenging Stalin. • 10-11 marks for linking OR prioritising factors. • 11-12 marks for linking AND prioritising factors.
