English abstract In this paper the major aspects of and essential developments in translation theory including the ever recurring question of what constitutes a good translation will be explored and the particularity of legal translation will be discussed In the translation of national law terms many facets have to be kept in mind For example the mastering of the different languages poses problems as does the relation of legal texts to different and specific legal systems and cultures The focus will then switch to legal language in particular The opposition between word meaning of everyday language and the word meaning of languages for specific purposes will be clarified Then particular difficulties in legal language and translation with consideration of the different legal systems where these translations are used will be illustrated with respect to the nature of legal discourse its dependence on the legal system and the presentation of possible ambiguities and their interpretation. The problem of a common legislation in the European Union is one of finding a legal terminology that is not influenced by its cultural environment an entirely impossible enterprise Translation Studies Abstracts/Bibliography of Translation Studies, 2008

A New Spectrum of Translation Studies José-María Bravo, William John Hutchins, 2004

Bibliography of Translation Studies Lynne Bowker, Dorothy Kenny, Jennifer Pearson, 2000 A volume of selected annotated references arranged under specific headings to provide a non partisan guide to teachers involved in designing courses in translation and or interpreting New Trends in Translation Studies Krisztina Károly, Ágota Fóris, 2005 Kinga Klaudy has obtained international reputation for original work in translation studies and has become widely recognized as one of the most distinguished scholars of the field This book is dedicated to her as an expression of the gratitude and respect her students colleagues and fellow researchers feel for all her work and devotion The studies in this volume draw on recent research presenting arguments for promising new directions in theory and analysis of translation studies Part One of this book includes contributions related directly to the theory of translation Part Two contains studies that focus on the analysis of particular translations where the languages are English Finnish Russian French and Hungarian The main topics related to the theory of translation center around the models and paradigms of translation studies translation strategies typology the notion of equivalence explication issues of terminology and translator training The empirical studies that Keywords in Context. A Quantitative and Qualitative Corpus Analysis Christoph Ruffing, 2016-03-22 Seminar paper from the year 2008 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Linguistics grade 14 Punkte Saarland University Fachrichtung 4 3 Anglistik Amerikanistik und anglophone Kulturen course Corpus Linguistics language English abstract In the course of this paper Old English key words are going to be analyzed with regard to their frequency and their characteristics in the respective context First of all I will present the compilation of the corpus and argue why the respective sources have been chosen I will also demonstrate some problems coinciding with the corpus compilation before offering approaches to the problem of how to gain key words in a diachronic text Afterwards I will present the most frequent key words and give a first short interpretation of the results All key terms are to be arranged in different semantic fields with respective subcategories and afterwards subjected to a quantitative analysis within these respective fields Within this analysis I will start with comparing the different fields with each other then I will compare the subcategories and finally examine the relations within the subcategories Finally a qualitative analysis will be performed once again within the different semantic fields In this respect I will also examine the characteristics of pronouns in a separate section Language Behavior Abstracts, 2008 Cultural Functions of Translation Christina Schäffner, Helen Kelly-Holmes, 1995 This book discusses the far reaching effects that translated texts may have in the target culture and illustrates that translation as a culture transcending process is an important way of forming cultural identities and of positioning cultures Lawrence Venuti discusses the enormous power translation wields in constructing representations of foreign cultures The conservative or transgressive effects of translation are illustrated by several translation projects from different periods novels philosophical texts and religious texts Candace Seguinot focuses on effects of globalisation for translating advertising She argues that the marketing of goods and services across cultural boundaries involves an understanding of culture and semiotics that goes well beyond both language and design Translation is a matter of making intelligible a whole culture The translator as the expert communicator is at the crucial centre of a long chain of communication from the original initiator to the ultimate receiver of a message The papers and the debates take up important related issues translation strategies foreignising vs domesticating strategies translation and marketing strategies the knowledge required of translators as interlingual and intercultural mediators ethical responsibilities and consequences for translator training Contributors to the debates include Mona Baker Terry Hale Paul Kussmaul Kirsten Malmkjaer Peter Newmark and Douglas Robinson
