

SECTION A: COMPREHENSIONQUESTION 1: READING FOR MEANING AND UNDERSTANDING

Read TEXTS A AND B below and answer the questions set.

TEXT ACULTURAL APPROPRIATION

|---|--|----|
| 1 | In sections of the media concerned with representation and social justice, it seems we can barely endure a week without a newsworthy incident about 'cultural appropriation'. While examples of cultural appropriation can be found in just about any cultural facet or artefact ¹ , the true complexity of cultural appropriation is often not fully appreciated or sufficiently articulated. | 5 |
| 2 | Cultural appropriation involves the use of one culture's elements by a group or individual that does not belong to that culture. However, this definition is lacking because such an interaction may be labelled simply as cultural exchange. And that argument would be difficult to defeat because, firstly, who 'owns' a culture? And secondly, borrowing from one culture and lending to another has been the way of the world since human society began, according to recorded history and anthropologists. | 10 |

The word 'culture' is often used to describe a group of people who share a common way of life. It can refer to a group's beliefs, customs, and values, or to the material objects that a group uses to express its identity. In this context, 'cultural appropriation' refers to the act of taking elements from one culture and using them in a way that is not respectful or authentic to that culture.

A recent example of cultural appropriation is the use of Native American headdresses by white people at music festivals. This is a problem because these headdresses are sacred to Native Americans and are not meant to be worn by anyone else. By wearing them, white people are disrespecting the culture and the people who created them. This is a form of cultural appropriation.

It is important to understand that cultural appropriation is not the same as cultural exchange. Cultural exchange is a mutual process where people from different cultures share and learn from each other. Cultural appropriation, on the other hand, is a one-sided process where one culture takes elements from another culture without understanding or respecting their meaning. This is why it is important to be careful when borrowing from other cultures.
