Reflections Robyn Apffel, 2015-11-06 Inspired by the strength and perseverance of cancer patients this book of reflections combines poetry and photography to offer peace comfort and encouragement to those who are battling cancer and to those who support them The photographs feature reflections that occur in nature and in artistic and architectural creations lending a sense of calm or intrigue or vitality The poems are all original works by Robyn Apffel written specifically for this book expressions of the emotions common to all who find that they must deal with cancer and its treatment but more than simply defining the emotions the poems illustrate how cancer affects what patients and their loved ones feel Many of the poems are not about cancer at all because there is indeed life beyond the disease Those that do mention cancer speak of it with honesty sensitivity and optimism Originally designed for the waiting room of a cancer center Reflections consists of 54 poems on a wide variety of topics The language is easily understood as the poems were written for readers looking for comfort and inspiration not for critics or other poets Some poems are very short while others are more lengthy but each piece can stand on its own and has something important to say Since individuals experience both life and its challenges uniquely each person will respond differently to each poem but most will find validation of their emotions throughout this volume While the author surely drew upon her personal journey with cancer the work as a whole is not autobiographical Robyn Apffel has pledged to donate at least 90% of the royalties generated by the sales of this book to support the excellent work done on behalf of gynecologic cancer patients at the Women s Cancer Center of the Carol G Simon Cancer Center at Morristown Medical Center Morristown New Jersey

Then Came the Rain Patti Davy,2007-07 My name is Constance L Aguero The name of this book is The Wounded Child The girl the world forgot this book consists of poetry that I have been writing since I was about eight years old These poems express the feelings that this young survivor experienced at the hands of sexual physical and emotional abuse These poems talk about the abuse of my father my uncle Walter my uncle Raymond my mother and her previous boyfriends and my father s tricks that he brought home from the bar I m hoping that with me expressing my abuse through my poetry that I can give a young or old person a chance at some hope I decided that it was time for the world to know exactly what kind of people my abusers really were I also figured this was my chance to tell my story my way without fearing what my abusers might think This is my time to stand up and feel proud of the young woman I taught myself to be My goals for writing this book are to let children know that it is not ok to be abused that they should tell someone if they are Also I want a chance to feel proud that I finally finished something that I set out to do I believe that if people take time to trust their gut instincts that they will be able to find the appropriate treatment for their issues If they do this they will feel a huge change in how they feel about themselves Metamorphosis: Krystal Frenchwood,2020-12-14 Metamorphosis is all about positive transformations willingly transforming molting a better version of oneself As the seasons change we are constantly shedding layers that no longer serve us as we endure and mature through the constant forces of nature applied upon us We suffer most in the dark For it is in our darkness we discover our true light Krystal Frenchwood From the Heart of a Survivor Misty Leigh,2015-03-03 From the heart of a survivor is a selection of poems created by a survivor of childhood sexual abuse the poems are captured in the book in the order they were written during a difficult period of time from reporting up to court and then into therapy I believe it offers a glimpse into the heart and mind of a survivor and the trials and tribulations often faced years after the abuse has ended Metamorphosis Vincetta Dunnell,2023-10-05
