

STATE LABORATORY ACTIVITY
Making Connections
A Laboratory Activity for the Living Environment

Discovering Connections

As they make observations, scientists are always looking for patterns in the natural world. For instance, researchers have observed that pregnant women who smoke cigarettes have a higher incidence of low-birthweight babies and that people with high-fat diets have a greater risk of developing heart disease. Many similar medical discoveries are a result of the patterns that can be observed when studying people and their lifestyles.

Discovering and explaining connections is one of the basic methods by which our knowledge of the world advances. It is what science is all about! Sometimes the connections are not what we expect or would predict, and sometimes we may have a hard time explaining the connections. Nevertheless, that is how science makes progress.

In this part of the laboratory activity, you will make a few observations about yourself and your classmates; then you will look for patterns or connections.

Safety

Safety is important during any laboratory activity, be sure you are careful and behave responsibly.

Another concern is health. If you have health reasons for not performing the exercises called for in this activity, tell your teacher so that other arrangements can be made for you to successfully complete the investigation. If you are excused from gym class for medical reasons, for example, or if you have asthma, tell your teacher about it before beginning the laboratory activity.

Middle School Life Science Judy Capra, 1999-08-23 Middle School Life Science Teacher's Guide is easy to use. The new design features tabbed loose sheets which come in a stand up box that fits neatly on a bookshelf. It is divided into units and chapters so that you may use only what you need. Instead of always transporting a large book or binder or box you may take only the pages you need and place them in a separate binder or folder. Teachers can also share materials. While one is teaching a particular chapter another may use the same resource material to teach a different chapter. It's simple, it's convenient.

Making Connections in Elementary and Middle School Social Studies Andrew P. Johnson, 2006 Making Connections in Elementary and Middle School Social Studies is based on the idea that students learn more and are more motivated to learn when they are able to connect their own knowledge, observations, ideas, imagination, and emotions with the content at hand. This book demonstrates how personal connections can be incorporated into social studies education while meeting NCSS thematic, pedagogical, and disciplinary standards. It is written in a very direct, reader-friendly style. Each chapter describes a variety of practical strategies and creative activities that novice and experienced teachers can use to make social studies more interesting and to help students make meaningful personal and academic connections. Each chapter contains a wealth of classroom strategies, pedagogical techniques, activities, and lesson plan ideas that can be used to enhance learning and make lessons more interesting, active, and student-centered. The book covers the three types of standards that elementary and middle school teachers work with as they teach social studies:

- o Thinking Ahead questions invite the reader to reflect on his/her own experiences as they relate to the material covered in the next chapter. These can be used as discussion points for a class or small group or simply as pre-reading prompts to enhance comprehension.
- o Teachers in Action boxes contain real-life narratives from practicing teachers. These cases are designed to expand upon key issues presented in each chapter. Every case is accompanied by the author's personal reflection on the case. These reflections are intended to give the reader an opinion against which he/she can measure his/her own reactions. After each case, the reader is prompted to think about the narrative presented and think about the way that his/her reactions compare with those presented by the author.
- o Go There boxes provide links to Web sites that offer additional resources for teachers, lesson plans, and other activities to enhance a social studies classroom.

This text is accompanied by a dynamic Instructor's Resources CD. The CD includes classroom video footage that can be shown in class to illustrate the concepts presented in the book and stimulate class discussion.

Making Sense of Field Research Sheila Pontis, 2018-07-17 Learn how to use field research to bring essential, people-centred insights to your information design projects. Information design is recognized as the practice of making complex data and information understandable for a particular audience, but what's often overlooked is the importance of understanding the audience themselves during the information design process. Rather than rely on intuition or assumptions, information designers need evidence gathered from real people about how they think, feel, and behave in order to inform the design of effective solutions To do this they need field research If you re unsure about field research and how it might fit into a project this book is for you This text presents practical easy to follow instructions for planning designing and conducting a field study as well as guidance for making sense of field data and translating findings into action The selection of established methods and techniques drawn from social sciences anthropology and participatory design is geared specifically toward information design problems Over 80 illustrations and five real world case studies bring key principles and methods of field research to life Whether you are designing a family of icons or a large scale signage system an instruction manual or an interactive data visualization this book will guide you through the necessary steps to ensure you are meeting people s needs
