Handbook on Rice Policy for Asia, 2012      Agricultural Innovation Systems The World Bank, 2012-02-21 Managing the ability of agriculture to meet rising global demand and to respond to the changes and opportunities will require good policy sustained investments and innovation not business as usual Investments in public Research and Development extension education and their links with one another have elicited high returns and pro poor growth but these investments alone will not elicit innovation at the pace or on the scale required by the intensifying and proliferating challenges confronting agriculture Experience indicates that aside from a strong capacity in Research and Development the ability to innovate is often related to collective action coordination the exchange of knowledge among diverse actors the incentives and resources available to form partnerships and develop businesses and conditions that make it possible for farmers or entrepreneurs to use the innovations While consensus is developing about what is meant by innovation and innovation system no detailed blueprint exists for making agricultural innovation happen at a given time in a given place for a given result The AIS approach that looks at these multiple conditions and relationships that promote innovation in agriculture has however moved from a concept to a sub discipline with principles of analysis and action AIS investments must be specific to the context responding to the stage of development in a particular country and agricultural sector especially the AIS This sourcebook contributes to identifying designing and implementing the investments approaches and complementary interventions that appear most likely to strengthen AIS and to promote agricultural innovation and equitable growth It emphasizes the lessons learned benefits and impacts implementation issues and prospects for replicating or expanding successful practices The information in this sourcebook derives from approaches that have been tested at different scales in different contexts It reflects the experiences and evolving understanding of numerous individuals and organizations concerned with agricultural innovation including the World Bank This information is targeted to the key operational staff in international and regional development agencies and national governments who design and implement lending projects and to the practitioners who design thematic programs and technical assistance packages The sourcebook can also be an important resource for the research community and nongovernmental organizations NGOs      The Custodians of Biodiversity Manuel Ruiz, Ronnie Vernooy, 2012-03-15 Globally local and indigenous approaches to conserving biodiversity crop improvement and managing precious natural resources are under threat Many communities have to deal with biopiracy for example As well existing laws are usually unsuitable for protecting indigenous and traditional knowledge and for recognizing collective rights such as in cases of participatory plant breeding where farmers researchers and others join forces to improve existing crop varieties or develop new ones based on shared knowledge and resources This book addresses these issues It outlines the national and international policy processes that are currently underway to protect local genetic resources and related traditional knowledge and the challenges these initiatives have faced In particular these themes are addressed within the context of the Convention of Biological Diversity and the International Treaty on Plant Genetic Resources for Food and Agriculture The authors broaden the policy and legal debates beyond the sphere of policy experts to include the knowledge holders themselves These are the custodians of biodiversity farmers herders and fishers in local communities Their experience in sharing access and benefits to genetic resources is shown to be crucial for the development of effective national and international agreements The book presents and analyzes this experience including case studies from China Cuba Honduras Jordan Nepal Peru and Syria Copublished with the International Development Research Centre IDRC
