House of Commons, 1905 Papers, 1920 Traditional Leadership and Democratisation in Southern Africa Sandra Düsing, 2002

What are the impacts of ethnically based traditional political institutions on democratic state and nation building in Southern Africa and how do heterogeneous sources of legitimacy affect the prospects of long term democratic regime consolidation

What are the impacts of traditionalism employed for purposes of party political mobilization

An indicator for the political influence of traditional leadership in Southern Africa is the fact that a considerable number of democratically elected politicians in high office originate from aristocratic families representing hereditary traditional leadership structures for centuries

This is evident for the charismatic founding president of the new South Africa Nelson Mandela as well as for his adversary the prime minister in office Mangosuthu Buthelezi

The careful reconsideration of this state behind the state has been identified as crucial in this study to make any realistic assessments of the prospects for sustainable democratization in Southern African countries in the near future Sessional Papers Great Britain. The informal sector in South Africa needs to be analysed in the context of rural urban migration dynamics and large scale labour control efforts by the state The chapters in the book provide detailed account of the black homelands and the elaborate legal structures created to control the influx of labour into urban areas Schlemmer and Moller s study for example indicates some important differences between migrants resident in legal hostels and those in the informal squatters settlements In both locations they endure severe stress and demoralisation but squatters seem to cope better They live with their families are better off and are less connected to the rural areas Contrary to what might be expected squatters have little or no resources to fall back on The Engineer ,1907
