Happy Apocalypse Jean-Baptiste Fressoz, 2024-06-18 How risk disasters and pollution were managed and made acceptable during the Industrial Revolution Being environmentally conscious is not nearly as modern as we imagine As a mode of thinking it goes back hundreds of years Yet we typically imagine ourselves among the first to grasp the impact humanity has on the environment Hence there is a fashion for green confessions and mea culpas But the notion of a contemporary ecological awakening leads to political impasse It erases a long history of environmental destruction Furthermore by focusing on our present virtues it overlooks the struggles from which our perspective arose In response Happy Apocalypse plunges us into the heart of controversies that emerged in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries around factories machines vaccines and railways Jean Baptiste Fressoz demonstrates how risk was conceived managed distributed and erased to facilitate industrialization He explores how clinical expertise around 1800 allowed vaccination to be presented as completely benign how the polluter pays principle emerged in the nineteenth century to legitimize the chemical industry how safety norms were invented to secure industrial capital and how criticisms and objections were silenced or overcome to establish technological modernity Societies of the past did not inadvertently alter their environments on a massive scale Nor did they disregard the consequences of their decisions They seriously considered them sometimes with dread The history recounted in this book is not one of a sudden awakening but a process of modernising environmental disinhibition

The Invention of Race Nicolas Bancel, Thomas David, Dominic Thomas, 2014-04-24 This edited collection explores the genesis of scientific conceptions of race and their accompanying impact on the taxonomy of human collections internationally as evidenced in ethnographic museums world fairs zoological gardens international colonial exhibitions and ethnic shows A deep epistemological change took place in Europe in this domain toward the end of the eighteenth century producing new scientific representations of race and thereby triggering a radical transformation in the visual economy relating to race and racial representation and its inscription in the body These practices would play defining roles in shaping public consciousness and the representation of otherness in modern societies The Invention of Race provides contextualization that is often lacking in contemporary discussions on diversity multiculturalism and race

Prieto, Gregory Radick, 2024-08-01 The Riddle of Organismal Agency brings together historians philosophers and scientists for an interdisciplinary reassessment of one of the long standing problems in the scientific understanding of life Marshalling insights from diverse sciences including physiology comparative psychology developmental biology and evolutionary biology the book provides an up to date survey of approaches to non human organisms as agents capable of performing activities serving their own goals such as surviving or reproducing and whose doings in the world are thus to be explained teleologically From an Integrated History and Philosophy of Science perspective the book contributes to a better conceptual and theoretical understanding of organismal agency advancing some suggestions on how to study it empirically and how to frame it in relation to wider scientific and philosophical traditions It also provides new historical entry points for examining the deployment trajectories and challenges of agential views of organisms in the history of biology and philosophy This book will be of interest to philosophers of biology historians of science biologists interested in analysing the active roles of organisms in development ecological interactions and evolution philosophers and practitioners of the cognitive sciences and philosophers and historians of philosophy working on purposiveness and teleology
