Water is Life Anne Hellum, Patricia Kameri-Mbote, 2015-10-19 This book approached water and sanitation as an African gender and human rights issue Empirical case studies from Kenya Malawi South Africa and Zimbabwe show how coexisting international national and local regulations of water and sanitation respond to the ways in which different groups of rural and urban women gain access to water for personal domestic and livelihood purposes The authors who are lawyers sociologists political scientists and anthropologists explore how women cope in contexts where they lack secure rights and participation in water governance institutions formal and informal The research shows how women as producers of family food rely on water from multiple sources that are governed by community based norms and institutions which recognise the right to water for livelihood How these common pool water resources due to protection gaps in both international and national law are threatened by large scale development and commercialisation initiatives facilitated through national permit systems is a key concern The studies demonstrate that existing water governance structures lack mechanisms which make them accountable to poor and vulnerable water users on the ground most importantly women The findings thus underscore the need to intensify measures to hold states accountable not just in water services provision but in assuring the basic human right to clean drinking water and sanitation and also to protect water for livelihoods

Policies, Legislation and Organizations Related to Water in South Africa, with Special Reference to the Olifants River Basin H. Thompson, C. M. Stimie, E. Richters, S. Perret, 2001 The study is reported in two Working Papers Working Paper 17 reports the findings of the HIM exercise This paper contains the policies legislation and organizations relevant for understanding of the HIM for the Olifants river basin It also includes the historical development of the institutional framework in the basin as this history has left a profound imprint on the South African society at large and is still dictating in many cases the interactions between the different organizations This background on previous and current institutions and policies at the different government levels is used to shed light on the current relationships between different organizations in the basin Although focusing on the Olifants the description provided is applicable to the rest of South Africa in broad terms

Routledge Handbook of Gender and Corruption Sope Williams, Maria Krambia Kapardis, Lisa A. Kihl, 2025-12-31 The Routledge Handbook of Gender and Corruption showcases the most innovative and exciting research being conducted in this area of study providing a comprehensive go to reference for all who are interested in the topic In the last two decades there has been an increasing awareness of the importance of understanding the nexus between gender and corruption in terms of understanding the way men and women experience corruption and the differential impact of anti corruption frameworks on men and women as well as an understanding of how women in different spaces affect the prevalence and kinds of corruption This Handbook examines these issues as well as the role of social and gender norms in relation to corruption This understanding is crucial for our ability to design anti corruption frameworks that are effective and do not create unintended consequences for any group Despite the importance of this issue there remains a lack of in depth analytical and geographically diverse investigations into the nexus of gender and corruption This book addresses this gap by providing a comprehensive multidisciplinary geographically balanced treatise on gender and corruption This book combines sectoral thematic and country specific studies to allow readers to easily compare differing perspectives and approaches on cutting edge issues and their implications for gender and corruption Key sectors such as education politics public procurement healthcare sport sanitation and immigration are considered as well as the role of new technologies in supporting whistleblowing This Handbook provides academics practitioners and graduate researchers of public policy public administration law and anti corruption with all of the tools they need to understand the nuances of gender and corruption

The transformation of irrigation boards into water user associations in South Africa: Case studies of the Lower Olifants, Great Letaba and Vaalharts water user associations. Volume 1 Seshoka, Jetrickde Lange, WillemFaysse, Nicolas,2004 The first case study is the Lower Olifants WUA in the Western Cape which was the first WUA in South Africa Its principal functions are to operate and maintain a canal that enables irrigation throughout the year in an arid region Around 9 200 hectares are irrigated mainly for vineyards The second case study relates to the Great Letaba WUA in the Limpopo Province This WUA manages the allocation of water downstream of two large dams near the town of Tzaneen An area of 12 500 hectares is irrigated in the river valley mainly for fruit tree farming The third case study assesses the Vaalharts WUA which is situated in both Northern Cape and North West provinces This WUA is one of the largest irrigation schemes in South Africa 37 100 hectares overall It manages mainly a canal that takes water from the Vaal River to irrigate commercial farms and downstream the Taung Irrigation Scheme in the former Bophuthatswana homeland

Building a Capable State Ian Palmer,Nishendra Moodley,Susan Parnell,2017-11-15 The sustainable development goals signed in 2016 marked a new phase in global development thinking one which is focused on ecologically and fiscally sustainable human settlements Few countries offer a better testing ground for their attainment than post apartheid South Africa Since the coming to power of the African National Congress the country has undergone a policy making revolution driven by an urgent need to improve access to services for the country s black majority A quarter century on from the fall of apartheid Building a Capable State asks what lessons can be learned from the South African experience The book assesses whether the South African government has succeeded in improving service delivery focusing on the vital sectors of water and sanitation energy roads public transport and housing Emphasizing the often overlooked role of local government institutions and finance the book demonstrates that effective service delivery can have a profound impact on the social structure of emerging economies and must form an integral part of any future development strategy A comprehensive examination of urban service delivery in the global South Building a Capable State is essential reading for students and practitioners across the social sciences public finance and
