Mi Life Book 2:

Catalogue of Books in the Lending Library Edinburgh (Scotland). Public Library, 1890 Catalogue of books in the lending library. 2nd 10,000 Edinburgh publ. libr, 1891 Philosophy As Fiction Joshua Landy, 2009-05-26 Philosophy as Fiction seeks to account for the peculiar power of philosophical literature by taking as its case study the paradigmatic generic hybrid of the twentieth century Marcel Proust's In Search of Lost Time. At once philosophical in that it presents claims and even deploys arguments concerning such traditionally philosophical issues as knowledge, self-deception, selfhood, love, friendship, and art, and literary in that its situations are imaginary and its stylization inescapably prominent, Proust's novel presents us with a conundrum: How should it be read? Can the two discursive structures co-exist, or must philosophy inevitably undermine literature by sapping the narrative of its vitality, and literature undermine philosophy by placing its claims in the mouth of an often unreliable narrator? In the case of Proust, at least, the result is greater than the sum of its parts. Not only can a coherent, distinctive philosophical system be extracted from the Recherche once the narrator's periodic waywardness is taken into account, not only does a powerfully original style pervade its every nook, overtly reinforcing some theories and covertly exemplifying others, but aspects of the philosophy also serve literary ends, contributing more to character than to conceptual framework. What, more, aspects of the aesthetics serve philosophical ends, enabling a reader to engage in an active manner with an alternative art of living? Unlike the essay, Proust might have written, his novel grants us the opportunity to use it as a practice ground for cooperation among our faculties for the careful sifting of memories for the complex procedures involved in self-fashioning and for the related art of self-deception. It is only because the narrator's insights do not always add up, a weakness so long as one treats the novel as a straightforward treatise, that it can produce its training effect, a feature that turns out to be its ultimate strength.

In Lady Audley's Shadow Saverio Tomaiuolo, 2010-10-05 This book is devoted to Mary Elizabeth Braddon's complex relationship with the three main Victorian literary genres: the Gothic, the Detective, and the Realist novel. Using Braddon's bestselling sensation fiction Lady Audley's Secret as a paradigmatic novel and as a haunting textual presence across her literary career, this study provides a fertile critical reading of a wide range of Braddon's novels and short stories. Through an analysis of Braddon's negotiations with Victorian narrative, ideological and cultural issues, this monograph offers readers a refreshing view of gender, female identity, and subjectivity, the treatment of insanity, questions related to technology and progress, the impact of evolutionism and Darwinism, the intersemiotic dialogue between pictorial art and novel writing, the role of the female writer in the new literary market, and the changing notion of capital in an increasingly fluid social context. Braddon's manipulation of Victorian literary codes and conventions proves that she was something more than a mere sensation writer, and that her primary role in the nineteenth-century literary scene has to be reaffirmed. Drawing on a wide range of textual materials and literary sources, the book foregrounds Braddon's constant and sometimes ambivalent dialogue with her times and with ours as well.
