SKELETAL AND MUSCULAR SYSTEMS

Dr. Mohammadali

SKELETAL SYSTEM

The skeletal system is composed of bones, ligaments, and joints. It provides structural support, protects internal organs, stores minerals, and facilitates movement. Bone marrow is located within the medullary cavity of bones and the epiphyseal (growth) areas of bones. There are two types of bone marrow: red and yellow. Red bone marrow is the site of blood cell formation, while yellow bone marrow contains adipose tissue. Bone tissue consists of osteons, which are the basic structural units of bone. Bone is constantly being broken down and rebuilt, a process called bone remodeling.

The human skeleton is divided into the axial skeleton (skull, spine, and rib cage) and the appendicular skeleton (arms and legs). The axial skeleton is composed of the skull, spine, and rib cage, while the appendicular skeleton is composed of the arms and legs. The skull is made up of the cranium and the facial bones. The spine is made up of the vertebrae and the sacrum. The rib cage is made up of the ribs and the sternum. The arms are made up of the humerus, radius, and ulna. The legs are made up of the femur, tibia, and fibula.

Diagram illustrating the skeletal system, showing the skull, spine, rib cage, and the appendicular skeleton (arms and legs).
