Assessing Academic Literacy in a Multilingual Society Albert Weideman, John Read, Theo du Plessis, 2020-11-02 South African universities face major challenges in meeting the needs of their students in the area of academic language and literacy. The dominant medium of instruction in the universities is English and to a much lesser extent Afrikaans but only a minority of the national population are native speakers of these languages. Nine other languages can be media of instruction in schools which makes the transition to tertiary education difficult enough in itself for students from these schools. The focus of this book is on procedures for assessing the academic language and literacy levels and needs of students not in order to exclude students from higher education but rather to identify those who would benefit from further development of their ability in order to undertake their degree studies successfully. The volume also aims to bring the innovative solutions designed by South African educators to a wider international audience.

Empowering Novice Academics for Student Success Dr Johann Hugo, 2021-04-26 This book is essential for academics that enter the field of higher education and training as it focuses on preparing teachers and trainers to respond appropriately to student success challenges. Student success is a burning issue both globally and locally. While student achievement is determined by a combination of factors, teachers and their teaching practices do matter. Higher education teachers are expected to fulfil different roles at different times such as planning for curriculum implementation, mentorship and coaching, facilitating learning resource development and student assessment. Against this background, the primary purpose of Empowering novice academics for student success is building the capacity of novice teachers and trainers to play an influential role in increasing student success throughout.

Farm-Level Modelling Shailesh Shrestha, Andrew Barnes, Bouda Vosough Ahmadi, 2016-09-28 Agriculture is the product of a complex mixture of behavioural, biophysical and market drivers. Understanding how these factors interact to produce crops and livestock for food has been the focus of economic investigation for many years. The advent of optimisation algorithms and the exponential growth in computing technology has allowed significant growth in mathematical modelling of the dynamics of agricultural systems. The complexity of approaches has grown in parallel with the availability of data at increasingly finer resolutions. Farm level models have been widely used in agricultural economic studies to understand how farmers and land owners respond to market and policy levers. This book provides an in depth description of different methodologies and techniques currently used in farm level modelling. While giving an overview of the theoretical grounding behind the models, an applied approach is also used. Case studies range from the application of modelling to policy reforms and the subsequent impacts on rural communities and food supply. This book also provides descriptions of the use of farm level models in much wider fields such as aggregation and linking with sectoral models. Its purpose is to show the reader the methods that have been employed to inform decision makers about how to improve the economic, social and environmental goals required to achieve the aims of multidimensional policy.

Applied Methods for Agriculture and Natural

Resource Management Siwa Msangi, Duncan MacEwan, 2019-05-17 This book assesses recent developments in the analysis of agricultural policy and water resource management and highlights the utility and theoretical rigor of quantitative methods for modeling agricultural production market dynamics and natural resource management In diverse case studies of the intersection between agriculture environmental quality and natural resource sustainability the authors analyze economic behavior both at aggregate as well as at individual agent level in order to highlight the practical implications for decision makers dealing with environmental and agricultural policy The volume also addresses the challenges of doing robust analysis with limited data and discusses the appropriate empirical approaches that can be employed The studies in this book were inspired by the work of Richard E Howitt Emeritus Professor of Agricultural Economics at the University of California at Davis USA whose career has focused on the application of robust empirical methods to address concrete policy problems

Lecture Notes in Real-Time Intelligent Systems Jolanta Mizera-Pietraszko, Pit Pichappan, Lahby
