Fractal Analyses: Statistical And Methodological Innovations And Best Practices John G. Holden, Michael A. Riley, Jianbo Gao, Kjerstin Torre, 2013-06-03 Many statistical and methodological developments regarding fractal analyses have appeared in the scientific literature since the publication of the seminal texts introducing Fractal Physiology. However, the lion's share of more recent work is distributed across many outlets and disciplines including aquatic sciences, biology, computer science, ecology, economics, geology, mathematics, medicine, neuroscience, physics, physiology, psychology, and others. The purpose of this special topic is to solicit submissions regarding fractal and nonlinear statistical techniques from experts that span a wide range of disciplines. The articles will aggregate extensive cross-discipline expertise into comprehensive and broadly applicable resources that will support the application of fractal methods to physiology and related disciplines. The articles will be organized with respect to a continuum defined by the characteristics of the empirical measurements: a given analysis is intended to confront. At one end of the continuum are stochastic techniques directed at assessing scale-invariant but stochastic data. The next step in the continuum concerns self-affine random fractals and methods directed at systems that entail scale-invariant or $1/f$ patterns or related patterns of temporal and spatial fluctuation. Analyses directed at noisy deterministic signals correspond to the final stage of the continuum that relates the statistical treatments of nonlinear stochastic and deterministic signals. Each section will contain introductory articles, advanced articles, and application articles so readers with any level of expertise with fractal methods will find the special topic accessible and useful. Example stochastic methods include probability density estimation for the inverse power law, the lognormal, and related distributions. Articles describing statistical issues and tools for discriminating different classes of distributions will be included. An example issue is distinguishing power law distributions from exponential distributions. Modeling issues and problems regarding statistical mimicking will be addressed as well. The random fractal section will present introductions to several one-dimensional monofractal time series analysis. Introductory articles will be accompanied by advanced articles that will supply comprehensive treatments of all the key fractal time series methods such as dispersion analysis, detrended fluctuation analysis, power spectral density analysis, and wavelet techniques. Box counting and related techniques will be introduced and described for spatial analyses of two and three dimensional domains as well. Tutorial articles on the execution and interpretation of multifractal analyses will be solicited. There are several standard wavelet-based and detrended fluctuation-based methods for estimating a multifractal spectrum. We hope to include articles that contrast the different methods and compare their statistical performance as well. The deterministic methods section will include articles that present methods of phase space reconstruction, recurrence analysis, and cross recurrence analysis. Recurrence methods are widely applicable but motivated by signals that contain deterministic patterns. Nonetheless, recent developments such as the analysis of recurrence interval scaling relations suggest applicability to fractal systems. Several related statistical procedures will be included in this section Examples include average mutual information statistics and false nearest neighbor analyses Earth and Mind II

Kim A. Kastens, Cathryn A. Manduca, 2012 Articles refer to teaching at various different levels from kindergarten to graduate school with sections on teaching geologic time space complex systems and field work Each section includes an introduction a thematic paper and commentaries A Collection of Technical Papers American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, 1997 This volume contains the proceedings of the 13th AIAA Computational Fluid Dynamics Conference It addresses numerical procedures for the solution of fluid dynamics and interdisciplinary problems Technical sessions of the conference focus on design optimization solution adaptive techniques convergence acceleration methods high resolution schemes parallel computing as well as improved algorithms for the solution of viscous inviscid and multi component flow applications The programme also includes a panel discussion addressing the evolving roles of government industry and academia in future CFD developments Bell Laboratories Talks and Papers Bell Telephone Laboratories.
