Results and Interpretations of the 2003 Mathematics Assessment of the National Assessment of Educational Progress Peter Kloosterman, Frank K.

Lester, 2007 With the enactment of No Child Left Behind and its sanctions for schools that fail to make adequate yearly progress NAEP National Assessment of Educational Progress results are no longer afterthoughts Instead the results generate headlines and are at the forefront of discussion of what is working in schools and what needs to be changed As the scrutiny of NAEP results has increased the National Center for Education Statistics has provided more detailed reporting of the results and has increased the level of security of the assessment items Both the level of detail and the concern for item security have played prominent roles in the development of this book The foregoing changes make understanding NAEP and its consequences crucial for any educator This book provides a background on NAEP looks at 2003 mathematics achievement in different content areas discusses data on who is teaching mathematics in the United States and examines students perception of mathematics Additionally the book deals with results from NAEP broken down by race ethnicity and by gender analyses certain NAEP results with a focus on what is actually measured by those results and examines changes in NAEP over the years and what those changes mean for NAEP as a tool for understanding student learning

What Mathematics Do Students Know and How is that Knowledge Changing? Peter Kloosterman, Doris Mohr, Crystal Walcott, 2015-09-01

This volume is intended for researchers curriculum developers policy makers and classroom teachers who want comprehensive information on what students at grades 4 8 and 12 the grades assessed by NAEP can and cannot do in mathematics After two introductory chapters on the design of NAEP the volume contains a chapter on the challenges in analyzing NAEP data at the item level followed by five chapters that report 2005 through 2013 student performance on specific assessment items These chapters are organized by content area and then by topic e g understanding of place value knowledge of transformations ability to use metric and U S systems of measurement and thus provide baseline data on the proportion of students who are able to complete the mathematics tasks currently used in the upper elementary middle and high school mathematics curriculum Additional chapters focus on student reasoning U S performance on international assessments and using construct analysis rather than percent correct on clusters of items to understand student knowledge on specific mathematics topics Several themes emerge from the volume One is that while the rate of improvement in mathematics learning in grades 4 and 8 has slowed in recent years it has slowed more on some topics than others Another is that relatively minor changes in wording can have significant effects on student performance and thus it is difficult to be specific about what students can do without knowing exactly what questions they were asked A third theme is that changes in performance over time can sometimes but not always be understood in terms of what students are taught For example there were substantial gains on several grade 4 items requiring understanding of fractions and that is probably because the amount of instruction on fractions in grades 3 and 4 has been increasing In contrast while relatively few twelfth grade students have ever been good at factoring trinomials performance on this skill seems to be decreasing This suggests that while more students are completing advanced mathematics courses in high school these courses are not helping in the area of factoring trinomials Finally there are limitations to using NAEP as a measure of student performance on the Common Core State Standards To the extent that NAEP can be used however the NAEP data show a substantial gap between expectations and performance
