[A Novel.] Zora Neale Hurston, 1934     "Dust tracks on a road", "Jonah's Gourd vine", "Their eyes were watching God" by Zora Neale Hurston Brigita Škufca, Igor Maver, 2002     "Ah Done Been Tuh de Horizon and Back" Péter Gaál-Szabó, 2011. The book investigates African American writer and anthropologist Zora Neale Hurston's cultural space. More specifically, different aspects of the interplay of space and place are studied in two of her novels: Their Eyes Were Watching God (1937) and Jonah's Gourd Vine (1934). Besides representing the peak of her art as a novelist, the novels present fine examples of her philosophy of culture, her conceptions of space and ways of place construction. The richness and vitality of her novels denote a particular view of culture and an African American way of authentication that enable her to construct a fulfilling cultural universe for the individual with despite inbuilt tensions. The cultural space Hurston establishes is embedded in an African American cultural context associated with the South. At the same time, her cultural space proves to be diverse due to inward heterogeneity and external contexts.

from post Reconstruction ca 1877 to the present Analysing a range of sources from the black press and periodicals to literary fiction and nonfiction the book charts the development of critical representation of travel from the foundational press and periodicals which offered African Americans crucial information on travel precautions and possibilities notably during the era of Jim Crow to the woefully understudied literary fiction that would later provide some of the most compelling and lasting portrayals of the freedoms and constraints African Americans associated with travel Travel experiences often challenging and vexed provided the raw data with which writers produced images and ideas meaningful as they learned to navigate negotiate and even challenge racialized and gendered impediments to their mobility In their writings African Americans worked to realize a vision and state of freedom informed by those often difficult experiences of mobility In telling this story the book hopes to center literary fiction in studies of travel where fiction has largely remained absent     Zora Neale Hurston Robert E.
