■ Research: The research was conducted by researchers at the University of California, San Diego, and the University of California, Berkeley.

Abstract

1. Several key areas are being addressed, and much is being achieved, particularly regarding the quality of human resource management training provided, particularly for female scientists, research technicians and support staff. The Institute, for example, have been able to approximate an average of more than 50% against the 30% target for female scientists, which is encouraging, although further strengthening of the management system (MIS) of training systems has been made, the position will still be considerable for general education, and it is certain that more substantial work will be required to achieve a more satisfactory situation.
