Exploration Strategy Based on Long-Term Affordability

The President's Vision for total system exploration is affordable in both the short-term and the long-term. Shuttle's budget will increase for five percent per year over the next three years and at about one percent for the following five years.

Although the budget increases per Shuttle, NASA will be able to carry out a robust exploration program. NASA will line up resources to its budget in three ways: building down growth in existing programs that do not support the vision, cutting the Space Shuttle's long-term reliance on dollars in the next decade, and focusing on innovations that reduce the cost of sustained space operations. Our chart shows NASA's plan to fund this with some new money as the new means for human exploration exploration of the solar system and beyond is implemented.
