Primate Behavioral Ecology Karen B. Strier,2016-08-25 This comprehensive introductory text integrates evolutionary ecological and demographic perspectives with new results from field studies and contemporary noninvasive molecular and hormonal techniques to understand how different primates behave and the significance of these insights for primate conservation Each chapter is organized around the major research themes in the field with Strier emphasizing the interplay between theory observations and conservation issues Examples are drawn from the classic primate field studies as well as more recent studies on previously neglected species illustrating the vast behavioral variation that exists across the primate order Primate Behavioral Ecology 5th Edition also examines how anthropogenic activities are negatively impacting primate populations including a thorough analysis of behavioural plasticity and its implications This fully updated new edition incorporates exciting new discoveries and the most up to date approaches in the field to provide an invaluable overview of the field of primate behavioral ecology and its applications to primate conservation It is considered to be a must read for all students interested in primates New Directions in Biocultural Anthropology Molly K. Zuckerman,Debra L. Martin,2016-10-17 Biocultural or biosocial anthropology is a research approach that views biology and culture as dialectically and inextricably intertwined explicitly emphasizing the dynamic interaction between humans and their larger social cultural and physical environments The biocultural approach emerged in anthropology in the 1960s matured in the 1980s and is now one of the dominant paradigms in anthropology particularly within biological anthropology This volume gathers contributions from the top scholars in biocultural anthropology focusing on six of the most influential productive and important areas of research within biocultural anthropology These are critical and synthetic approaches within biocultural anthropology biocultural approaches to identity including race and racism health diet and nutrition infectious disease from antiquity to the modern era epidemiologic transitions and population dynamics and inequality and violence studies Focusing on these six major areas of burgeoning research within biocultural anthropology makes the proposed volume timely widely applicable and useful to scholars engaging in biocultural research and students interested in the biocultural approach and synthetic in its coverage of contemporary scholarship in biocultural anthropology Students will be able to grasp the history of the biocultural approach and how that history continues to impact scholarship as well as the scope of current research within the approach and the foci of biocultural research into the future Importantly contributions in the text follow a consistent format of a discussion of method and theory relative to a particular aspect of the above six topics followed by a case study applying the surveyed method and theory This structure will engage students by providing real world examples of anthropological issues and demonstrating how biocultural method and theory can be used to elucidate and resolve them Key features include Contributions which span the breadth of approaches and topics within biological anthropology from the insights granted through work with ancient human remains to those granted through collaborative research with contemporary peoples Comprehensive treatment of diverse topics within biocultural anthropology from human variation and adaptability to recent disease pandemics the embodied effects of race and racism industrialization and the rise of allergy and autoimmune diseases and the sociopolitics of slavery and torture Contributions and sections united by thematically cohesive threads Clear jargon free language in a text that is designed to be pedagogically flexible contributions are written to be both understandable and engaging to both undergraduate and graduate students Provision of synthetic theory method and data in each contribution The use of richly contextualized case studies driven by empirical data Through case study driven contributions each chapter demonstrates how biocultural approaches can be used to better understand and resolve real world problems and anthropological issues   Changing Dietary Patterns, Indigenous Foods, and Wild Foods Kumiko Sakamoto,Lilian Daniel Kaale,Reiko Ohmori,Tamahi Kato (Yamauchi),2023-08-30 This book presents different dietary patterns some utilizing wild foods and others facing drastically changing dietary patterns and shows their implications for health in terms of wealth mutual assistance food sufficiency and food diversity The book examines these globally important issues through a case study of Tanzania Using a novel methodology based on a global standard quality of life indicator the book sheds light on the relationship between wild food intake and health in Tanzania Descriptive case studies illustrate the impact of various food patterns and wild food intake on human health It also highlights the divergence between food production sufficiency and food diversity It then discusses the influence of wealth mutual relations and methods of food access Finally the book concludes with recommendations for maintaining good health in various environments The intended readers of this book are academicsand professionals in the fields of development nutrition and environment in East Africa These include but are not limited to regional and district personnel who are actively engaged in development relevant ministries of food and agriculture and international organizations such as FAO UNICEF UNDP and UNEP In the academic field students and researchers in international studies development studies African studies social studies cultural studies nutrition agriculture and environmental studies are targeted This book won the 2024 Japan Society for International Development Committee Special Award   New Challenges and Future Perspectives in Nutrition and Sustainable Diets in Africa Hettie Carina Schönfeldt,Gloria Essilfie,Yunyun Gong,2024-05-06 Africa is confronted with the triple burden of malnutrition it is also faced with the triple challenges of poverty inequality and unemployment In many African countries large proportions of the population rely on agriculture not only for their food but also for their livelihoods A transformed agricultural and food system is thus a necessary condition for addressing this double triple challenge Additionally post harvest and food waste and losses reduce the availability of sufficient quantities of safe edible and preferable foods At least one third of food produced at farm level is lost due to inappropriate storage infrastructure and agro processing technologies in developing countries and one third of food purchased is wasted at household and retail level   Culture, Environment and Health in the Yucatan Peninsula Hugo Azcorra,Federico Dickinson,2019-12-11 This book adopts a human ecology approach to present an overview of the biological responses to social political economic cultural and environmental changes that affected human populations in the Yucatan Peninsula Mexico since the Classic Maya Period Human bodies express social relations and we can read these relations by analyzing biological tissues or systems and by measuring certain phenotypical traits at the population level Departing from this theoretical premise the contributors to this volume analyze the interactions between ecosystems sociocultural systems and human biology in a specific geographic region to show how changes in sociocultural and natural environment affect the health of a population over time This edited volume brings together contributions from a range of different scientific disciplines such as biological anthropology bioarchaeology human biology nutrition epidemiology ecotoxicology political economy sociology and ecology that analyze the interactions between culture environment and health in different domains of human life such as The political ecology of food nutrition and health Impacts of social and economic changes in children s diet and women s fertility Biological consequences of social vulnerability in urban areas Impacts of toxic contamination of natural resources on human health Ecological and sociocultural determinants of infectious diseases Culture Environment and Health in the Yucatan Peninsula A Human Ecology Perspective will be of interest to researchers from the social health and life sciences dedicated to the study of the interactions between natural environments human biology health and social issues especially in fields such as biological and sociocultural anthropology health promotion and environmental health It will also be a useful tool to health professionals and public agents responsible for designing and applying public health policies in contexts of social vulnerability   Analyzing the relationship between dietary patterns, health outcomes and individual food choices Francesco Visioli,Francesco Sofi,2023-01-30   Global Food Systems, Diets, and Nutrition Jessica Fanzo,Claire Davis,2021-06-05 Ensuring optimal diets and nutrition for the global population is a grand challenge fraught with many contentious issues To achieve food security for all and protect health we need functional equitable and sustainable food systems Food systems are highly complex networks of individuals and institutions that depend on governance and policy leadership This book explains how interconnected food systems and policies affect diets and nutrition in high middle and low income countries In tandem with food policy food systems determine the availability affordability and nutritional quality of the food supply which influences the diets that people are willing and able to consume Readers will become familiar with both domestic and international food policy processes and actors and they will be able to critically analyze and debate how policy and science affect diet and nutrition outcomes
