The purpose of the present research was to test the proposed model designed to increase reliability. First, questions of reliability, validity, generalizability, and fit were addressed using three data sets that had been previously collected and analyzed. Issues regarding the test-retest reliability of the instrument, the construct validity of the instrument, and the extent to which it is capable of detecting real differences within and among groups, professionals and non-professionals, were addressed.

CARE AND MAINTENANCE

To reduce the potential treatment burden, we are now developing a new strategy to assess the impact of Staphylococcus aureus carriage on the health outcomes of a patient. Instead of the current requirement to test for carriage at the time of each visit, we are considering a single test at the time of diagnosis.
