

Lessons Learned

The process of reflecting on projects, events, experiences and situations in order to capture what you have learned.

Overview

- Taking time to reflect on projects, events and initiatives to capture what has worked well and what has failed.
- Appreciative inquiry that focuses on finding positive things that have worked and scaling them in future.
- The process of identifying, analyzing, documenting and communicating areas for improvement so that mistakes aren't repeated by future initiatives.
- All stakeholders are given a chance to contribute. Likewise, lessons learned are documented and communicated to all stakeholders.

Examples

1. Identifying issues and problems that occurred.
2. Analyzing the root cause of each problem.
3. Documenting how problems could be avoided by similar initiatives in the future.
4. Assigning action items for resolving any outstanding problems.
5. Identifying things that worked well and opportunities to build this out.
6. Listing possible improvements to processes, procedures and practices.

† Lessons learned is not about assigning blame or pointing to shortcomings but is rather oriented towards improving things in the future.
