Ch: 1

Date:

I can make an inference on why Peak is in the back of a truck in Tibet Asia.

Standards:

Materials: Ch. 1 Google Slides, Ch.1 Doodle notes, End of Ch. 1 Activity

Activities to go with Ch. 1 of Peak:

Before: Present the book and some background knowledge about Tibet and Mt. Everest. Review the definition and steps of making an inference. Model making an inference for students.

During: Doodle notes on clues that help us make an inference on Peak's situation.
After: Model for students one more time on making an inference. Using the end of Chapter 1 activity, students will make an inference of why Peak is in the back of a truck in Tibet Asia. They will identify any prior knowledge that they have that helps them make this inference and any clues that they found in the text.

Differentiation: Doodle Notes - If students would just prefer to write, allow that. For students who need support writing, they can draw their prior knowledge, what the text states, and their inference on the impact.

Assessment for Ch. 1:
Check students End of Ch. 1 Activity

Connection to Real World (Closure): Without know exactly why Peak is in Tibet, how would you feel being in his shoes based on your inferences?
