Resilience and Collapse in African Savannahs Michael Bollig, David M. Anderson, 2018-10-11 This book assesses the causes and consequences of environmental change in East Africa asking whether local African communities are sufficiently resilient to cope with the ecological and social challenges that confront them. It focuses on the savannahs of the Baringo Bogoria basin and the surrounding highlands of Kenya's northern Rift Valley that form the social ecological system of the specialised cattle pastoralists and niche agricultural farmers who occupy these semi arid lands. Historical studies of resilience spanning the past two centuries are linked with analysis of current environmental challenges and the ecological social economic and political responses mounted by local communities. The authors question whether the most recent challenges confronting the peoples of eastern Africa's savannahs intensified conflicts mounting poverty driven by demographic pressures and dramatic ecological changes brought by invasive species might soon lead to a collapse in essential elements of the specialised cattle pastoralism that dominates the region requiring a re-orientation of the social ecological system. This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Eastern African Studies.
