

LA RECONFIGURATION DE L'ACTION PUBLIQUE EN BELGIQUE

13

Les transformations de l'État opérées au cours de ces dernières décennies ont provoqué une recomposition combinée de l'action publique et des territoires. L'Union européenne est devenue une véritable entité politique, les territoires et les espaces fonctionnels s'affirment comme des unités de gestion autonomes et les agences spécialisées se multiplient. Ces recompositions entraînent une différenciation accrue des responsabilités qui questionne la cohérence de l'action publique.

Cet ouvrage présente un aperçu de l'évolution de la Belgique vers une action publique à multiples échelons de pouvoir. Il traduit la réalité de ces transformations institutionnelles et ouvre des perspectives sur l'avenir du pays. Les différentes contributions entremêlent les secteurs (emploi, transport, télécommunications, tourisme, culture et politique de la ville) et les échelons politiques (Europe, Fédéral, régions, communautés et communes) et entend dévoiler les approches et dégager de grandes tendances générales.

David Aubin, Nathalie Schiffino et Fabienne Lefoup sont tous trois professeurs de science politique à l'Université catholique de Louvain. David Aubin travaille plus particulièrement sur les politiques publiques de durabilité et la régulation des services de réseaux, Fabienne Lefoup sur l'action publique locale et le développement territorial et Nathalie Schiffino sur la démocratie et les politiques publiques liées au risque et aux biotechnologies.
