Session 1: Magnetism

"Science is built up with facts, as a house is with stones. But a collection of facts is no more a science than a heap of stones is a house."
- Jules Henri Poincaré

Session Summary

Students will learn about the magnetic field of a bar magnet. By the end of this activity, the students will know that bar magnets have two "poles," and that similar poles repel and different poles attract. They will know that magnetic fields are invisible, but they can be measured and they have a direction. They will know that a compass is made up of a tiny bar magnet that aligns itself with strong magnetic fields.

Student Objectives

1. Students will know that magnets have an invisible force field known as a magnetic field.
2. Students will be able to detect and draw a magnetic field using compasses.
3. Students will know that a compass is made up of a tiny bar magnet that aligns itself with a large magnetic field.
4. Students will know that bar magnets have two poles and that similar poles repel each other and differing poles attract each other.
