

Part of Barren Collier Series of Political Cartoons, this World War I-era cartoon (1917) depicts a German soldier guzzling blood from a pistol. After the Armistice, Fitzgerald worked briefly in Manhattan as an adviser for the Barren Collier agency.

to Trinity College, Oxford, founded in 1555, is one of the constituent colleges of the University of Oxford. On his last trip to Europe, during the spring of 1925, Fitzgerald met his wife, Zelda, at Trinity College, a chain of national circumstances which had stirred this release from Montenegro's worn little heart. My incredulity was submerged in fascination now; it was like skimming hastily through a dozen magazines.

He reached in his pocket, and a piece of metal, slung on a ribbon, fell into my palm.

"That's the one from Montenegro."

To my astonishment, the thing had an authentic look. "Order of Danilo," ran the circular legend, "Montenegro, Nicholas Rex."

"Turn it."

"Major Jay Gatsby," I read. "For Valour Extraordinary."

"Here's another thing I always carry. A souvenir of Oxford days. It was taken in Trinity Quad"—the man on my left is now the Earl of Downshire.

It was a photograph of half a dozen young men in blazers looking in an archway through which were visible a host of spires. There was Gatsby looking a little, not much, younger—with a cricket bat in his hand.

Then it was all true. I saw the skins of tigers flaring in his palace on the Grand Canal.¹⁴ I saw him opening a chest of robes to see, with their crimson-lined depths, the pawings of his leather boots.

"I'm going to make a big request of you today," he said, pocketing his souvenirs with satisfaction, "so I thought you ought to know something about me. I didn't want you to think I was just some nobody. You see, I usually find myself among strangers because I drink here and there trying to forget the sad thing that happened to me." He hesitated. "You'll hear about it this afternoon."

"No lunch?"

"No, this afternoon. I happened to find out that you're taking Miss Baker to tea."

"Do you mean you're to love with Miss Baker?"

"No, old sport, I'm not. But Miss Baker has kindly consented to speak to you about this matter."

I hadn't the faintest idea what "this matter" was, but I was more intrigued than concerned. I hadn't asked Jordan to tea in order to discuss Mr. Jay Gatsby. I was sure the request would be something utterly fantastic, and for a moment I was sorry I'd ever set foot upon his overpopulated lawn.

He wouldn't say another word. His corrections grew on him as we strolled the city. We passed Port Sunlight, where there was a glimpse of red-bellied ocean-going ships, and sped along a ribbled dual road with the dark, unadorned saloons of the faded-gilt nineteen hundreds. Then the valley of ashes opened out on both sides of us, and I had a glimpse of Mrs. Wilson straining at the garage pump with passing vitality as we went by.

With hushes spread like wings we scattered light through half America—only half, for as we twisted among the pillars of the elevated I heard the familiar "jug-jug-gee" of a motorcycle, and a frantic policeman rode alongside.

"All right, old sport," called Gatsby. We slowed down. Taking a white card from his wallet, he waved it before the man's eyes.

Gatsby's medal, the Order of Danilo is a major roadway that winds through Venice. The road takes the shape of an inverted letter "T" on a map of the city. Known as Venezieta or the Canaletto, it is lined with opulent palaces belonging to the wealthiest Venetian families.

Studies of digital communication technologies often focus on the apparently unique set of multimodal resources afforded to users and the development of innovative linguistic strategies for performing mediated identities and maintaining online social networks This edited volume interrogates the novelty of such practices by establishing a transhistorical approach to the study of digital communication The transhistorical approach explores language practices as lived experiences grounded in historical contexts and aims to identify those elements of human behaviour that transcend historical boundaries looking beyond specific developments in communication technologies to understand the enduring motivations and social concerns that drive human communication The volume reveals long term patterns in the indexical functions of seemingly innovative written and multimodal resources and the ideologies that underpin them and shows that methods are not necessarily contingent on their datasets historical analytic frameworks can be applied to digital data and newer approaches used to understand historical data These insights present exciting opportunities for English language researchers both historical and modern
