Knowing Native Arts Nancy Marie Mithlo, 2020-09 Knowing Native

Arts brings Nancy Marie Mithlo's Native insider perspective to understanding the significance of Indigenous arts in national and global milieus. These musings, written from the perspective of a senior academic and curator traversing a dynamic and at turns fraught era of Native self-determination, are a critical appraisal of a system that is often broken for Native peoples seeking equity in the arts. Mithlo addresses crucial issues such as the professionalization of Native arts scholarship, disparities in philanthropy and training, ethnic fraud, and the receptive scope of Native arts in new global and digital realms. This contribution to the field of fine arts broadens the scope of discussions and offers insights that are often excluded from contemporary appraisals.

Reproductive Justice Barbara Gurr, 2014-12-09 In Reproductive Justice, sociologist Barbara Gurr provides the first analysis of Native American women's reproductive healthcare and offers a sustained consideration of the movement for reproductive justice in the United States. The book examines the reproductive healthcare experiences on Pine Ridge Reservation, home of the Oglala Lakota Nation in South Dakota, where Gurr herself lived for more than a year. Gurr paints an insightful portrait of the Indian Health Service (IHS), the federal agency tasked with providing culturally appropriate, adequate healthcare to Native Americans, shedding much-needed light on Native American women's efforts to obtain prenatal care, access to contraception, abortion services, and access to care after sexual assault. Reproductive Justice goes beyond this local story to look more broadly at how race, gender, sex, sexuality, class, and nation inform the ways in which the government understands reproductive healthcare and organizes the delivery of this care. It reveals why the basic experience of reproductive healthcare for most Americans is so different and better than for Native American women in general and women in reservation communities, particularly. Finally, Gurr outlines the strengths that these communities can bring to the creation of their own reproductive justice and considers the role of IHS in fostering these strengths as it moves forward in partnership with Native nations. Reproductive Justice offers a respectful and informed analysis of the stories Native American women have to tell about their bodies, their lives, and their communities.

Indigenous Invisibility in the City Deirdre Howard-Wagner, 2020-11-17 Indigenous Invisibility in the City contextualises the significant social change in Indigenous life circumstances and resurgence that came out of social movements in cities. It is about Indigenous resurgence and community development by First Nations people for First Nations people in cities. Seventy-five years ago, First Nations peoples began a significant post-war period of relocation to cities in the United States, Canada, Australia, and Aotearoa New Zealand. First Nations peoples engaged in projects of resurgence and community development in the cities of the four settler states. First Nations peoples who were motivated by aspirations for autonomy and empowerment went on to create the foundations of Indigenous social infrastructure. This book explains the ways First Nations people in cities created and took control of their own futures, a fact largely wilfully ignored in policy contexts. Today, differences exist over the way governments and First Nations peoples see the role and responsibilities of Indigenous institutions in cities. What remains hidden in plain sight is their societal function as a social and political apparatus through which much of the social processes of Indigenous resurgence and community development in cities occurred The struggle for self determination in settler cities plays out through First Nations people s efforts to sustain their own institutions and resurgence but also rights and recognition in cities This book will be of interest to Indigenous studies scholars urban sociologists urban political scientists urban studies scholars and development studies scholars interested in urban issues and community building and development This book is available for free in PDF format as Open Access from the individual product page at www.routledge.com It has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

Native North American Theater in a Global Age Birgit Däwes, 2007 Indigenous drama is at once the oldest and most innovative the most heavily displaced and resistant American genre Despite its increasing international presence over the past two decades the field has so far been neglected by scholarship This study seeks to chart the genre in both the U S and Canada by its contemporary manifestations from 1968 to 2004 and traces its historical entanglements in simulacral images and colonial surveillance Placing particular emphasis on the fashioning of cultural identity this approach situates Native theater in the larger framework of transnational methodologies General questions of theatricality and representation are complemented by in depth analyses of 25 plays by authors such as Hanay Geiogamah Monica Charles Gerald Vizenor Spiderwoman Theater Diane Glancy Margo Kane Tomson Highway and Drew Hayden Taylor
