McDonnell,Joshua H. Goldwyn,Benjamin Lindner,2016-07-18 Stochastic fluctuations are intrinsic to and unavoidable at every stage of neural dynamics For example ion channels undergo random conformational changes neurotransmitter release at synapses is discrete and probabilistic and neural networks are embedded in spontaneous background activity The mathematical and computational tool sets contributing to our understanding of stochastic neural dynamics have expanded rapidly in recent years New theories have emerged detailing the dynamics and computational power of the balanced state in recurrent networks At the cellular level novel stochastic extensions to the classical Hodgkin Huxley model have enlarged our understanding of neuronal dynamics and action potential initiation Analytical methods have been developed that allow for the calculation of the firing statistics of simplified phenomenological integrate and fire models taking into account adaptation currents or temporal correlations of the noise This Research Topic is focused on identified physiological internal noise sources and mechanisms By internal we mean variability that is generated by intrinsic biophysical processes This includes noise at a range of scales from ion channels to synapses to neurons to networks The contributions in this Research Topic introduce innovative mathematical analysis and or computational methods that relate to empirical measures of neural activity and illuminate the functional role of intrinsic noise in the brain Parliamentary Debates (Hansard). Information-based methods for neuroimaging: analyzing structure, function and dynamics Jesus M.

Cortés,Daniele Marinazzo,Miguel Angel Muñoz,2015-05-07 The aim of this Research Topic is to discuss the state of the art on the use of Information based methods in the analysis of neuroimaging data Information based methods typically built as extensions of the Shannon Entropy are at the basis of model free approaches which being based on probability distributions rather than on specific expectations can account for all possible non linearities present in the data in a model independent fashion Mutual Information like methods can also be applied on interacting dynamical variables described by time series thus addressing the uncertainty reduction or information in one variable by conditioning on another set of variables In the last years different Information based methods have been shown to be flexible and powerful tools to analyze neuroimaging data with a wide range of different methodologies including formulations based on bivariate vs multivariate representations frequency vs time domains etc Apart from methodological issues the information bit as a common unit represents a convenient way to open the road for comparison and integration between different measurements of neuroimaging data in three complementary contexts Structural Connectivity Dynamical Functional and Effective Connectivity and Modelling of brain activity Applications are ubiquitous starting from resting state in healthy subjects to modulations of consciousness and other aspects of pathophysiology Mutual Information based methods have provided new insights about common principles in brain organization showing the existence of an active default network when the brain is at rest It is not clear however how this default network is generated the different modules are intra interacting or disappearing in the presence of stimulation Some of these open questions at the functional level might find their mechanisms on their structural correlates A key question is the link between structure and function and the use of structural priors for the understanding of the functional connectivity measures As effective connectivity is concerned recently a common framework has been proposed for Transfer Entropy and Granger Causality a well established methodology originally based on autoregressive models This framework can open the way to new theories and applications This Research Topic brings together contributions from researchers from different backgrounds which are either developing new approaches or applying existing methodologies to new data and we hope it will set the basis for discussing the development and validation of new Information based methodologies for the understanding of brain structure function and dynamics The Engineer ,1890 Proceedings of the ASME Heat Transfer Division--1998 R.
