Up High and Down Low Kathleen King, 2021-12 Have you ever thought about what a bridge can be It can be a transition to another state of being in either a literal or figurative sense It can help one cross over a difficult obstacle or it can be the obstacle Kathleen King s bridge was a metaphorical one She saw normalcy as the bridge to happiness She tried crossing that bridge in a variety of ways career marriage and motherhood especially adoptive parenthood This book is her story of trying to cross the bridge built from a difficult childhood and mental illness into a normal life As you read some attempts may seem flawed now but they were the only ways she knew of to be as normal whatever that is as other people she observed She used a variety of ways to get to the other side One was her insistence on setting extreme goals for herself The more difficult the challenge the more the sense of accomplishment When she was a young woman people with conditions similar to hers did not talk openly about their symptoms of unrelenting cycles of depression and mania and it seemed not even professionals understood the highs and lows Her unrelenting super goals gave her brief satisfaction And then the crashes would come accompanied more than once by suicidal urges So she would think time to crank up the goals Adopting a child Eventually a baby was not enough She had to adopt special needs children She depended on those extreme goals as her coping mechanisms You may see yourself in Kathleen s stories or you may see someone close to you

Mothering in the Third Wave Amber E. Kinser, 2008 Mothering in the Third Wave is a welcome addition to scholarship on both third wave feminism and feminist mothering The volume continues in the tradition of earlier third wave anthologies in its inclusive and diverse vision of feminisms and feminists while forging new ground in its focus on third wave mothers and third wave practices of mothering In exploring how the institution of motherhood is shaped by today s political and social realities Mothering in the Third Wave examines contemporary experiences of feminist mothering while connecting to earlier writing on the subject since the 1970s

Recommended for readers of any generation interested in the complexities of feminist mothering in the twenty first century Astrid Henry author of Not My Mother's Sister Generational Conflict and Third Wave Feminism The Organization of Attachment Relationships Patricia McKinsey Crittenden, Angelika Hartl Claussen, 2003-06-16 This volume first published in 2000 presents a theory on attachment that broadens its range to ages beyond infancy
