Motivational Factors And Achievement:

Motivational Factors and Achievement Bharti Rathore, 2014-11-13 Motivations are the driving forces of our life. Positive motivations lead to positivity and success, whereas having lack of motivation may develop inertia or lethargy which can further lead to failures. This book is an attempt to study the motivational factors of student teachers for doing B Ed course and their effect on academic achievement. Personal Interest, parents' desire to get better spouse, social status, money, good dowry, creativity, personality development, serving the country, no other alternative available are some of the prominent motivational factors which motivate a person to do the B Ed course to be teachers in future. Teachers are the destiny makers as they exercise huge influence on the new generation. We require passionate, dedicated, and sincere teachers so that the world can progress for a better future. For this, our young generation needs to be positively motivated to be teachers.

Motivational Factors in School Achievement Martin L. Maehr, 1982 Motivational factors in the prediction of achievement Irving Slabodkin, 1954 The Effects of Motivational Factors on Student Achievement in STEM Mara Lynne Banfield, 2020. This study examines motivational factors and how they affect student achievement as well as teacher and student perceptions of these factors in a STEM school. The focus of this research is to determine if there is an association between overall reported motivation and student achievement as measured by End of Course performance and Grade Point Average (GPA) in a STEM school. This study utilizes mixed methods research and examines the MUSIC Model of Motivation which educators use to assess motivation and study students' perceptions of their classes. Jones, 2017. This research investigates the factors in the MUSIC Model of Motivation and the effect of motivational factors on student achievement and learning. The research suggests a correlation between the success factor and achievement as measured through state-mandated End of Course assessments. Ohio Department of Education, 2018. The results suggest the strongest correlation between motivation and achievement. End of Course in American History. The research examines student and educator perceptions of motivational factors. Both educators and students perceive the caring factor to be the highest. Interest is the lowest scoring factor for students, while empowerment is the lowest scoring factor for teachers. Educators summarize through interviews the role of the educator as a facilitator of learning and a motivator that combines the factors to engage students. Educators in this study strongly emphasize the importance of the caring factor in a school setting. They argue that this factor is crucial in the STEM school, which is a public school of choice. The research implements reflective practices through qualitative research questions based on the quantitative results.

Motivational Factors & English Achievement Hojat Jodai, 2012. Success in learning a foreign language is influenced by both affective and cognitive factors. One of the most widely accepted affective factors in foreign language learning is motivation. Motivation is the most used concept for explaining the failure or success of a language.

learner Considering the significance of motivation in second language acquisition this book investigated the effect of motivational factors on English achievement The wider concluding argument of this book is that motivation and its constructs are context dependent and therefore any language learning context has its own unique motivational model Thank you for the summary of your research It is very interesting R C Gardner Ph D Professor Emeritus Department of Psychology University of Western Ontario Hojat Jodai has done a very systematic research using the most interesting statistical analysis I surmise that the study is good enough to be a source of several academic paper publications Amir Mahdavi Zafarghandi PhD graduate of Essex University U K Assistant Professor English Language Dept University of Guilan Iran
