Rehabilitation services are provided by a multidisciplinary team of professionals, including physical therapists, occupational therapists, speech therapists, and psychologists. The team works together to develop a comprehensive treatment plan for each patient, tailored to their specific needs and goals. The rehabilitation process typically involves a combination of physical therapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, and psychological support. Physical therapy focuses on improving the patient's physical strength, flexibility, and coordination. Occupational therapy helps the patient develop the skills and techniques needed to perform daily activities. Speech therapy addresses any communication or swallowing difficulties. Psychological support helps the patient cope with the emotional and psychological challenges of the rehabilitation process. The team also provides education and counseling to the patient and their family, helping them understand the condition and the rehabilitation process. The goal of the rehabilitation program is to help the patient achieve the best possible outcome, improve their quality of life, and return to their normal activities as soon as possible.
