STICKY ISN'T SO ICKY

Children Involved: Amalie
Educator: Liama
Date: 10/6/14

This morning Amalie brought a flower and some leaves into our Caterpillar Room. Amalie's Dad told me that she had picked the flower and leaves from their front garden. Amalie had a big grin on her face as she stretched her arms out, showing me the flower. "Wow! That's a beautiful flower!" I said excitedly. Amalie said "bye dad" and took my hand and led me to the art area. She sat herself on a chair at one of the tables and began to put the leaves off the flower. I asked Amalie "Should we make some art with your flower and leaves?" and Amalie responded by nodding her head. I encouraged Amalie to continue pulling apart her flower as I created a frame of context which I then placed in front of her. She looked at me and then at the context and then at me again. I told her "It's okay, have a play, what does it feel like?" Amalie put her finger into the context and then pulled it away- it got stuck, so she pulled a little harder and her finger was free and she smiled. She took a few petals and a leaf and sprinkled them over the context, which she then pulled down with her hand. She placed some more of her petals and leaves onto the context and as she was pressing them down, her fingers got stuck to the context. Amalie began to laugh and shriek and was bringing her hands on the context. Amalie picked up her flower and looked through it from underneath, touching the objects that she had stuck down. She put it back down and took off the natural materials that she had stuck down. I asked her "Would you like to go and get some more flowers and leaves from your garden?" She replied "no" and left the table to go and play with the dolls in the dramatic play area.

IDENTITY
Amalie appears to be having self-esteem and enjoyment in her learning environment as she confidently expressed her her Dad and initiated an interaction with our other educators.

COMMUNITY
This suggests that Amalie is growing an appreciation for natural environments.

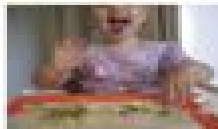

WELL-BEING
It is possible that Amalie is becoming aware of her health and emotional wellbeing as she made this discovery from exploring the properties of context.

LEARNING
Amalie could be gaining to explore and investigate objects, she suggests that she is developing a range of skills and processes.

CONNECTIONS
Amalie seems to be using mostly social context to communicate her feelings, thoughts and suggestions.

What's next?

- To further encourage positive separations in the morning and her interest in nature, I requested that Amalie bring in other natural resources to incorporate into her play for the rest of the week.
- Tomorrow, we will also collect some home natural materials from our outdoor learning environment to use indoors.
