thinking and practices updated references and case studies throughout to represent new research and legislation since the first edition an extended discussion of globalization and global policy borrowing further coverage of social justice theory including a perspective on identity theory and the role of education in the development of identity and the marginalisation of individuals and groups a new historical chapter covering the period 1945 to 1997 a summary of the development of the curriculum and a critique of the 2014 National curriculum as pioneered by Michael Gove and a new conclusion setting out the trajectory of current policies and how this may affect educational practitioners This is essential reading for all undergraduate students studying education policy and practice

Teachers Matter - But How? Ninni Wahlström, Daniel Alvunger, Daniel Sundberg, 2019-12-18 Global processes are transforming educational policy around the world in complex ways with different implications for different local arenas Over the last two decades a global neoliberal policy paradigm has emerged placing the teacher at its centre Two well known examples are the OECD report on education and training policy Teachers Matter and the McKinsey Company report entitled How the World's Best Performing School Systems Come Out on Top It now seems more important than ever to highlight some alternatives that might contribute to a broader understanding of the meaning of being a teacher In a time of standardised performance and accountability this special issue raises critical questions about the space for teachers agency and teachers as curriculum agents The different articles from some of our most distinguished researchers in the field provide essential perspectives on the question of where when and how teachers matter Our interest is not primarily to understand the scope of teachers agency but rather to understand what becomes important for teachers in their everyday activities such as teaching students handling educational norms and rules working in a local as well as a global society etc A common theme throughout the articles is that teachers matter in spaces where they can act as moral subjects in their profession in the present drawing on collective and individual experiences of the past whilst imagining a desired future This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Curriculum Studies

Educational Assessment in a Changing World Isabel Nisbet, Stuart Shaw, 2024-10-21 This timely book takes stock of the wide range of developments in society education and assessment and offers conclusions and strategies that are necessary for the future of educational assessment Drawing on examples from the UK Europe and USA the book will dissect cultural political psychological and ideological ideas on society education and assessment and foreground pressing issues relating to artificial intelligence social justice and climate change Acknowledging its predominantly Western perspective and providing context on the evolution of educational assessment the book will bridge the gap between theory and practice to progress debate and discourse on creating a culture of assessment fit for the future and rethinking strategies for the path ahead Ultimately the book will provide insights and key takeaways for the field of educational assessment along with an evidence based agenda that will be relevant for education professionals the assessment industry and policymakers interested in higher education international and comparative education and testing
