Games in the Primary EFL Classroom. Teaching English as a Foreign Language Playfully to Primary School Students Jella Delzer,2023-03-28 Seminar paper from the year 2022 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Pedagogy Literature Studies grade 1 3 University of Flensburg Institut f r Sprache Literatur und Medien course TEFL in Primary School Playful English Teaching language English abstract The aim of this paper is to raise awareness of the importance of integrating games in the primary EFL classroom The approach to foreign language teaching has shifted in the sense that it is now not only a possibility but rather a requirement that foreign language teaching and learning should be enjoyable A teaching technique that is characterized by the elements of fun and play is the use of games Hence this paper argues for the implementation of games as a teaching technique in the primary EFL classroom and emphasizes the benefits of doing so regarding the positive impact it has on the language learning process Although the pedagogical value of games in the teaching of English as a foreign language EFL is generally acknowledged the usage of games in primary EFL education is less documented and even less practiced since research on foreign language teaching and learning often focuses on older learners The inclusion of games in children s education has been studied but rarely with the focus on foreign language learning Thus there is still a lot of research to do when it comes to teaching English as a foreign language playfully to primary school students primary focus will be on identifying and analyzing the short comings within the educational institutions of Reykjavik City and their impact on migrant parents and their children s language development Through qualitative interviews with six migrant parents in Iceland through narrative analysis and an autoethnographic approach this research aims at shedding light on the experiences and challenges of migrant parents as their children navigate language acquisition in Icelandic preschool settings while learning their heritage language at home I will also ask the question of how much of the policies of the National Curriculum have been carried out in different educational facilities inside Reykjavik Consequently I want to discuss if preschools in Reykjavik stick to a multilingual policy or if they try to maintain a monolingual discourse for young children The parents I interviewed for this paper expressed concerns about communication issues with their children s preschools in Iceland Additionally they highlighted a perceived lack of staff in Icelandic preschools leading to the perceived lack of communication The parents also felt that there was an overemphasis on the Icelandic language This in turn made it difficult and frustrating for the children to communicate in their home or heritage languages The findings aim to contribute to a deeper understanding of multilingualism in educational contexts in Reykjavik and aim at providing valuable insights for educators and policy makers to support language development and integration for migrant children There has been a long standing interest in multilingualism in Icelandic preschools and the impact of the linguistically diverse upbringing of children in this country With my research I try to contribute to the ongoing discourse on multilingual education in preschools

Safford, 2021-03 It is difficult to fathom the myriad changes that have occurred and that influence the content of this book in just three years since the previous edition As this book goes to press we have witnessed many nations in Europe as well as the United States that have made dramatic political shifts from open and liberal leanings to more populist nationalistic and conservative ideologies These shifts have been accompanied by an increase in xenophobia and stricter actions to reduce immigration often accompanied by a rise in anti-immigrant anti-Semitic and Islamophobic sentiment The conflicts and struggles in Afghanistan Iraq and Syria continue as tensions between the United States and Russia fester A questioning of Truth with an onslaught of fake news has emerged having a major influence on the 2016 U.S. presidential election And we expect numerous changes to occur under the new U.S. Secretary of Education Betsy DeVos And these challenges are in the political arena alone Across the planet people continue to feel the stresses of the seemingly endless changes and challenges they confront on many fronts Climate change continues to advance resulting in new and unpredictable weather patterns despite a vocal minority that appears to deny its existence Although making gains people continue to wrestle with questions surrounding same-sex marriage and gay rights the question of health care the accelerated identification of children with autism and other disabilities as well as our aging population span cultural differences and cut across geographic political and social boundaries continuing to impact us all at the local national and global levels Some people are eager to embrace innovation and change while others struggle through a variety of political and social means to retain older and more traditional ways of doing things Such challenges continue to enter and impact our increasingly culturally diverse classrooms and communities To effectively address and solve the multitude of issues we face it is incumbent upon teachers to provide young people with a foundation that will assist them to better understand the complex nature of the world in which they will live while developing the skills that will enable them to be proactive problem solvers in an interdependent global society This requires people who have the knowledge skills and motivations to reach beyond their own cultural boundaries and a willingness and ability to collaborate with others If people are not willing and able to do so these and other future problems simply will not be solved Developing intercultural understanding and competence must be actively addressed throughout the school curriculum This tenth edition of Human Diversity in Education An Intercultural Approach continues to focus on the preparation of teachers and other human service providers who can interact effectively with the wide diversity of people they are certain to encounter and who are able to transmit this knowledge and skill to the individuals in their charge Report on the Progress of Education in the Punjab Punjab (India).
