

Essay Sample on Backward Design and Adult Learning Theories Essay

Introduction

Adult learning theories have gone through noticeable change over the years. It is worth noting that no theory explains why grown-ups do learning (Merriam, 2017). The theories adapted either support or do not support the curriculum design using the backward design principles where the aims are focused on first before deciding on the instructional methods that would help in achieving the same.

Traditional Adult Learning Theories and Models

According to Taylor and Hamdy (2013) the theory of Andragogy explains that the adults are very much aware of the reason why they are learning and that they take responsibility for every decision they take in so far as learning is concerned. Most adults felt encouraged and motivated to learn; otherwise, they would not, and all adults have had past experiences in education, and they can use this to ensure that their learning becomes effective. The theory of Andragogy supports the principles of backward design since it depicts adults as mature people in terms of knowledge and therefore they know what is expected of them. The tutor can go ahead and design his targets, looking at what the adult learners are supposed to achieve at the end of the learning and come to how to accomplish the objectives later and the teaching can still be effective. It is the attitude of the learners that make this very possible.

Self-directed learning which is a characteristic of adult learning process says that the adults are capable of independently do planning, education and assess their performance (Hoban, Lawson, Mazmanian, Best, & Seibel, 2005). This means that the theory does not recognize other forms of learning and therefore needs little or no assistance from a tutor in the learning process. This lowers the importance of backward design where the tutor sets up targets for the learners. The learners themselves conduct the whole process on their own.

Contemporary Adult Learning Theories and Models

Cognitive learning theory bases its arguments that learning is majorly in mind (Gagne, Briggs, & Wagner, 1992). That once an individual decides to do it, it does not matter the instrument that would be used to achieve the objectives. He will still be able to achieve the targets.

Backward Design Can Be Used With Adult Learners in Formal

Backward design can be used in the formal learning environments with much ease because this milieu is characterized by structured learning that has learning materials and what should be done at what level. The teacher can, therefore, look at what should be done at what level and begin by setting goals that should be achieved at the end of every learning session. The teacher should then find out evidence and finally plan on how to achieve the results, i.e., what materials to use and how

Learning Theories Paper:

Models of Learning, Memory, and Choice William Kaye Estes, 1982 Learning Theories for Teachers Morris L. Bigge, S. Samuel Shermis, 1999 Purpose is to develop and explain a psychological field centered educational psychology that emphasizes teaching for changes in understandings as contrasted with teaching for changes in behaviors Teaching and learning theories. Behaviorism, cognitivism, and constructivism Stephanie Reuter, 2021-11-24 Seminar paper from the year 2005 in the subject Pedagogy Theory of Science Anthropology grade 1 0 University of Münster language English abstract The paper begins with a definition of learning and learning theories In a second part the three learning theories behaviourism cognitivism and constructivism are presented Subsequently the theoretical explanations are supplemented by three learning programmes whereby each learning software can be assigned to a specific learning theory Finally the advantages and disadvantages of the three learning theories and their applications in the classroom will be discussed The human learning process has always been the subject of intensive scientific research as it is one of the most fascinating and at the same time complex phenomena of all Humans are capable of learning from birth babies for example learn very quickly how to communicate their needs The powerful brain good memory abstract thinking and the natural curiosity of humans underline this fact Learning happens not only consciously e.g. in school but often unconsciously e.g. language acquisition of infants Nevertheless not all sensory impressions are stored by the human brain sensory perceptions are selected and evaluated For teachers in particular the question arises as to how their pupils learn so that they can optimally support and accompany the learning processes In the pedagogical discussion three learning theories have emerged in recent decades that explain the human learning process very differently Behaviourism which emerged in the first half of the 20th century and still has a great influence in the scientific discussion today cognitivism which emerged from the criticism of behaviourism and finally constructivism which increasingly found its way into the discussion in the 1990s The Development and Applications of Social Learning Theory Julian B. Rotter, 1982 Learning Theories Firend Al. R., 2019-06-01 The theories herewith are the most commonly discussed in educational psychology textbooks and are studied by most students in schools of education The theories discussed in this book are applicable in real setting of higher education through a process of experimentation and practice The three main classifications of learning theories are behaviorism cognitivist and constructivism All of which provides a rubric and guideline for educators that help in the process of selecting teaching methodology techniques approaches strategies and tools Moreover only through practice an educator can develop a best practice that best fit the teacher student's relationship according to culture capacity of the learner learning styles and many other constraints and resources to be taken into consideration This book highlights the fact that certain theories and learning styles tend to be particularly important in international learning setting whereby students are culturally diverse and particularly if they are of High Context Societies as explained in this book Learning: Theories Melvin Herman

Marx,1970 Theories of Learning and Studies of Instructional Practice Timothy Koschmann,2011-04-19 This is a book about an attempt to change the way math was taught in a particular classroom Its title plays on our everyday usage of the terms theory and practice In education these terms are conventionally treated oppositionally we have theories about what we should do and we have what teachers actually do do In this way theory stands prior logically and chronologically to practice practice inevitably becoming theory s imperfect realization We seek in this volume however to develop a different stance with regard to the relationship between the two Taking the details of instructional practice as our principle object of study we explore what role theories of learning might play in illuminating such practices The book is about actual practices by which teaching is done and how contemporary theories of learning might help us understand those practices It seeks to provide a foundation for future practice based inquiry in education by addressing the methodological question How do we go about studying instructional practice in a principled way Learning Theories Dale H. Schunk,2000 Core text for Learning Theories in education and Human Learning courses in psychology This text provides succinct complete overviews of all current behavioral and cognitive theories and presents their implications for learning and instruction Also covers motivation and self regulation and contains a new chapter on development and learning In addition to theory it gives equal treatment to the applications of principles and concepts of teaching and learning Ideal for students with minimal course background in psychology this text illustrates abstract concepts with specific examples Students can also gather helpful information from a detailed glossary with more than 300 technical terms and an extensive bibliography with more than 1 100 references

How do learning theories help us to promote successful learners? Sam Curran,2018-05-09 Essay from the year 2012 in the subject Pedagogy General grade 80 University of Cumbria course Secondary Mathematics Teaching language English abstract There are numerous varied theories of how children learn and how they acquire new knowledge to the point that they competently retain and apply what they have learnt unconsciously An awareness of certain learning theories may be conducive to a teacher s practice as they may then be able to adapt their teaching so that it conforms to the style in which students naturally learn However it might be hard to ensure that every pupil has their learning style suitably reinforced as there may be a large spectrum of the ways in which pupils learn within a class Contemporary Theories of Learning Knud Illeris,2009-05-07 In this definitive collection of today s most influential learning theorists sixteen world renowned experts present their understanding of what learning is and how human learning takes place Professor Knud Illeris has collected chapters that explain both the complex frameworks in which learning takes place and the specific facets of learning such as the acquisition of learning content personal development and the cultural and social nature of learning processes Each international expert provides either a seminal text or an entirely new pr cis of the conceptual framework they have developed over a lifetime of study Elucidating the key concepts of learning Contemporary Theories of Learning provides both the perfect desk reference and an ideal introduction for students It will prove an authoritative guide for researchers and academics involved in the study of learning and an invaluable resource for all those dealing with learning in daily life and work It provides a detailed synthesis of current learning theories all in the words of the theorists themselves The theories of Knud Illeris Peter Jarvis Robert Kegan Yrj Engestr m Bente Elkjaer Jack Mezirow Howard Gardner Peter Alheit John Heron Mark Tennant Jerome Bruner Robin Usher Thomas Ziehe Jean Lave Etienne Wenger Danny Wildemeersch Veerle Stroobants In their own words

Human-Computer Interaction Julie Jacko,Constantine Stephanidis,2003-09-01 This is the second volume in the HCI International Conference Proceedings 2003 See following arrangement for details Learning Theory and Personality Dynamics Orval Hobart Mowrer,1950 An Introduction to Theories of Learning Matthew H. Olson,B. R. Hergenhahn,2009 For undergraduate and graduate courses in Learning Theory and Learning in departments of psychology and education Accessible for undergraduates yet thorough enough for graduate students this comprehensive text defines learning and shows how the learning process is studied The text places learning in its historical perspective giving students an appreciation for the figures and theories that have shaped 100 years of learning theory research Model-directed Learning. Albert Bandura's Social Cognitive Learning Theory and Its Social-psychological Significance for School and Instruction Liwia Kolodziej,2015-01-22 Seminar paper from the year 2006 in the subject Pedagogy Science Theory Anthropology grade 1 7 University of Wuppertal course Theory of Learning language English abstract This term paper explores the subject Model directed Learning Albert Bandura s Social Cognitive Learning Theory and its social psychological Significance for School and Instruction The topic touches on several complex scientific areas that cannot be exhaustively discussed and in part can only contribute in a more generalized form to the scope of this term paper. Hence there is the challenge of setting boundaries at first. The main focus of this paper is on the social cognitive learning theory according to Albert Bandura with its central statements serving as the theoretical foundation of the paper as a whole. The aim is to investigate which basic principles Bandura is adopting from human behavior, how he does explain and analyze this approach. This theoretical rationale should be set up in the socio psychological context of school and instruction. Hence a main goal of this paper is to establish a theory practice relevance. In other words, the focus is to investigate which consequences are arising from the social cognitive learning theory for school teaching, education and studying. A key aspect of the social cognitive learning theory is model based learning, thus the assumption that human learning can happen through observation and imitation of others. In a society in which humans strive for individuality and originality, imitation and simulation are associated with negative characteristics. Nevertheless, imitation behavior plays an important role even in every day situations. A person's aggressive behavior or drug habit is often rationalized with the assumption that this behavior was copied from friends or was due to the influence of others or being surrounded with the wrong people. This term paper attempts to show the scientific reasoning behind this everyday wisdom.

Resources in Education, 1999-10 Learning Theory and Personality Dynamics O. Hobart Mowrer, 1950 Learning Theory and AV Utilization Wesley C. Meierhenry, 1961 Ways of Learning Alan M. Pritchard, 2014

Whilst most teachers are skilled in providing opportunities for the progression of children's learning, it is often without fully understanding the theory behind it. With greater insight into what is currently known about the processes of learning and about individual learning preferences, teachers are better equipped to provide effective experiences and situations which are more likely to lead to lasting attainment. Now fully updated, Ways of Learning seeks to provide an understanding of the ways in which learning takes place which teachers can make use of in their planning and teaching, including:

- An overview of learning
- Behaviourism and the beginning of theory
- Cognitive and constructivist learning
- Multiple intelligences
- Learning styles
- Difficulties with learning
- The influence of neuro psychology
- Relating theory to practice

The third edition of this book includes developments in areas covered in the first and second editions, as well as expanding on certain topics to bring about a wider perspective, most noticeably a newly updated and fully expanded chapter on the influence of neuro educational research. The book also reflects changes in government policy and is closely related to new developments in practice. Written for trainee teachers, serving teachers and others interested in learning for various reasons, Ways of Learning serves as a valuable introduction for students setting out on higher degree work who are in need of an introduction to the topic.

Learning Theories Dale H. Schunk, 1996

Useful for students with minimal course background in psychology, this text balances coverage of theories, principles and research findings appropriate for human learning with an emphasis on specific examples of their application in a variety of educational settings.
