Fluid Physiology Thomas Woodcock,2019-10-23 This book is essential reading for medical or veterinary practitioners who need to understand the new fluid physiology and to apply it to the safe care of patients The Starling principle is one of medicine s most important concepts and originates from Ernest Starling s laboratory research 120 years ago However inappropriate fluid therapy is now recognised as harming and even killing thousands of patients every year In 2004 a landmark study was published which confirmed the hypotheses put forward by Sheldon Weinbaum and Charles Michel among other physiologists that in most tissues and in most situations capillaries filter fluid to the interstitium but do not reabsorb it This book draws together for the first time the evolving science of the steady state Starling principle and the clinical evidence that reveals its applicability to safer patient care It is a thorough re appraisal of the basics of fluid therapy The mantra of colloid boluses for plasma volume resuscitation and colloid free isotonic salt solution for extracellular fluid volume does not explain observations from blinded clinical trials and the expectation of benefit for resuscitation with colloids particularly in respect of oedema has not materialised Now that there is consensus that colloid volume therapy should not be used in critically ill patients there is a pressing need for a new paradigm for fluid therapy This book proposes an improved paradigm that takes into consideration the Starling principle which has been neglected by clinicians and revised by physiologists in recent years It retires the view of colloids as preferred plasma substitutes and focuses instead on the central volume of distribution of an infused fluid its rate of distribution to a peripheral volume and its rate of excretion In short it emphasises volume kinetics

How and Why Does Spatial-Hearing Ability Differ among Listeners? What Is the Role of Learning and Multisensory Interactions? Guillaume Andéol,Brian D. Simpson,Ewan A. Macpherson,2016-08-29

Spatial hearing ability has been found to vary widely across listeners A survey of the existing auditory space perception literature suggests that three main types of factors may account for this variability physical factors e g acoustical characteristics related to sound localization cues perceptual factors e g sensory cognitive processing perceptual learning multisensory interactions and methodological factors e g differences in stimulus presentation methods across studies However the extent to which these and perhaps other still unidentified factors actually contribute to the observed variability in spatial hearing across individuals with normal hearing or within special populations e g hearing impaired listeners remains largely unknown Likewise the role of perceptual learning and multisensory interactions in the emergence of a multimodal but unified representation of auditory space is still an active topic of research A better characterization and understanding of the determinants of inter individual variability in spatial hearing and of its relationship with perceptual learning and multisensory interactions would have numerous benefits In particular it would enhance the design of rehabilitative devices and of human machine interfaces involving auditory or multimodal space perception such as virtual auditory multimodal displays in aeronautics or navigational aids for the visually impaired For this Research Topic we have considered manuscripts that present new methods or review existing methods for the study of inter individual differences present new data or review existing data concerning acoustical features relevant for explaining inter individual differences in sound localization performance present new or review existing psychophysical or neurophysiological findings concerning spatial hearing and or auditory perceptual learning and or multisensory interactions in humans normal or impaired young or older listeners or other species discuss the influence of inter individual differences on the design and use of assistive listening devices rehabilitation or human machine interfaces involving spatial hearing or multimodal perception of space ergonomy

The State of African Cities, 2014 United Nations Human Settlements Programme, 2013 Nairobi UN Habitat c2014 9789211325980

The State of African Cities, 2014 United Nations Publications, 2015-09-10 The African continent is currently in the midst of simultaneously unfolding and highly significant demographic economic technological environmental urban and socio political transitions Africa s economic performance is promising with booming cities supporting growing middle classes and creating sizable consumer markets Despite significant overall growth the continent continues to suffer under very rapid urban growth accompanied by massive urban poverty and many other social problems These seem to indicate that the development trajectories followed by African nations since post independence may not be able to deliver on the aspirations of broad based human development and prosperity for all This report therefore argues for a bold re imagining of prevailing models in order to steer the ongoing transitions towards greater sustainability based on a thorough review of all available options That is especially the case since the already daunting urban challenges in Africa are now being exacerbated by the new vulnerabilities and threats associated with climate and environmental change
