Multi-omic Data Integration Paolo Tieri, Christine Nardini, Jennifer Elizabeth Dent, 2015-09-17 Stable predictive biomarkers and interpretable disease signatures are seen as a significant step towards personalized medicine In this perspective integration of multi omic data coming from genomics transcriptomics glycomics proteomics metabolomics is a powerful strategy to reconstruct and analyse complex multi dimensional interactions enabling deeper mechanistic and medical insight At the same time there is a rising concern that much of such different omic data although often publicly and freely available lie in databases and repositories underutilised or not used at all Issues coming from lack of standardisation and shared biological identities are also well known From these considerations a novel pressing request arises from the life sciences to design methodologies and approaches that allow for these data to be interpreted as a whole i e as intertwined molecular signatures containing genes proteins mRNAs and miRNAs able to capture inter layers connections and complexity Papers discuss data integration approaches and methods of several types and extents their application in understanding the pathogenesis of specific diseases or in identifying candidate biomarkers to exploit the full benefit of multi omic datasets and their intrinsic information content Topics of interest include but are not limited to Methods for the integration of layered data including but not limited to genomics transcriptomics glycomics proteomics metabolomics Application of multi omic data integration approaches for diagnostic biomarker discovery in any field of the life sciences Innovative approaches for the analysis and the visualization of multi omic datasets Methods and applications for systematic measurements from single undivided samples comprising genomic transcriptomic proteomic metabolomic measurements among others Multi scale approaches for integrated dynamic modelling and simulation Implementation of applications computational resources and repositories devoted to data integration including but not limited to data warehousing database federation semantic integration service oriented and or wiki integration Issues related to the definition and implementation of standards shared identities and semantics with particular focus on the integration problem Research papers reviews and short communications on all topics related to the above issues were welcomed

The Microbial Regulation of Global Biogeochemical Cycles Johannes Rousk, Per Bengtson, 2014-10-17 Global biogeochemical cycles of carbon and nutrients are increasingly affected by human activities So far modeling has been central for our understanding of how this will affect ecosystem functioning and the biogeochemical cycling of carbon and nutrients These models have been forced to adopt a reductive approach built on the flow of carbon and nutrients between pools that are difficult or even impossible to verify with empirical evidence Furthermore while some of these models include the response in physiology ecology and biogeography of primary producers to environmental change the microbial part of the ecosystem is generally poorly represented or lacking altogether The principal pool of carbon and nutrients in soil is the organic matter The turnover of this reservoir is governed by microorganisms that act as catalytic converters of environmental conditions into biogeochemical cycling of carbon and nutrients The dependency of this conversion activity on individual environmental conditions such as pH moisture and temperature has been frequently studied On the contrary only rarely have the microorganisms involved in carrying out the processes been identified and one of the biggest challenges for advancing our understanding of biogeochemical processes is to identify the microorganisms carrying out a specific set of metabolic processes and how they partition their carbon and nutrient use We also need to identify the factors governing these activities and if they result in feedback mechanisms that alter the growth activity and interaction between primary producers and microorganisms By determining how different groups of microorganisms respond to individual environmental conditions by allocating carbon and nutrients to production of biomass CO₂ and other products a mechanistic as well as quantitative understanding of formation and decomposition of organic matter and the production and consumption of greenhouse gases can be achieved In this Research Topic supported by the Swedish research councils programme Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services in a Changing Landscape BECC we intend to promote this alternative framework to address how cycling of carbon and nutrients will be altered in a changing environment from the first principle mechanisms that drive them namely the ecology physiology and biogeography of microorganisms and on up to emerging global biogeochemical patterns This novel and unconventional approach has the potential to generate fresh insights that can open up new horizons and stimulate rapid conceptual development in our basic understanding of the regulating factors for global biogeochemical cycles The vision for the research topic is to facilitate such progress by bringing together leading scientists as proponents of several disciplines By bridging Microbial Ecology and Biogeochemistry connecting microbial activities at the micro scale to carbon fluxes at the ecosystem scale and linking above and belowground ecosystem functioning we can leap forward from the current understanding of the global biogeochemical cycles

Rural America in a Globalizing World Conner Bailey, Leif Jensen, Elizabeth Ransom, 2014 This fourth Rural Sociological Society decennial volume provides advanced policy scholarship on rural North America during the 2010 s closely reflecting upon the increasingly global nature of social cultural and economic forces and the impact of neoliberal ideology upon policy politics and power in rural areas The chapters in this volume represent the expertise of an influential group of scholars in rural sociology and related social sciences Its five sections address the changing structure of North American agriculture natural resources and the environment demographics diversity and quality of life in rural communities The Chittagong University Journal of Social Science ,2010
