Myers et al. (2002) and previous studies demonstrating benefits of CBT for children with anxiety disorders have been limited by the use of small samples and/or the use of nonrandomized, noncontrolled designs. This product is an alternative to the "gold standard" of randomized, controlled trials, designed to address the need for a more accessible, cost-effective, and evidence-based approach to the treatment of childhood anxiety disorders. The product is a self-help manual, designed to be used by children and their parents, and is available in both English and Spanish.
