Nanocosmetics Arun Nanda, Sanju Nanda, Susai Rajendran, Yassine Slimani, Tuan Anh Nguyen, 2020-05-06

Nanotechnology is key to the design and manufacture of the new generation of cosmetics. Nanotechnology can enhance the performance and properties of cosmetics including colour, transparency, solubility, texture and durability. Sunscreen products such as UV nano filters, nano TiO<sub>2</sub> and nano ZnO particles can offer an advantage over their traditional counterparts due to their broad UV protection and non cutaneous side effects. For perfumes, nano droplets can be found in cosmetic products including Eau de Toilette and Eau de Parfum. Nanomaterials can also be used in cosmetics as transdermal drug delivery systems. By using smart nanocontainers, active compounds such as vitamins, antioxidants, nutrients and anti-inflammatory anti-infective agents can be delivered effectively. These smart nanocontainers are typically related with the smart releasing property for their embedded active substances. These smart releases could be obtained by using the smart coatings as their outer nano shells. These nano shells could prevent the direct contact between these active agents and the adjacent local environments. Nanocosmetics: Fundamentals, Applications and Toxicity explores the formulation, design, concepts and emerging applications of nanocosmetics. The book also focuses on the mitigation or prevention of their potential nanotoxicity, potential global regulatory challenges and the technical challenges of mass implementation. It is an important reference source for materials scientists and pharmaceutical scientists looking to further their understanding of how nanotechnology is being used for the new generation of cosmetics. Outlines the major fabrication and formulation design concepts of nanoscale products for cosmetic applications. Explores how nanomaterials can safely be used for various applications in cosmetic products. Assesses the major challenges of using nanomaterials for cosmetic applications on a large scale. UNESCO science report UNESCO, 2015-11-09. There are fewer grounds today than in the past to deplore a North-South divide in research and innovation. This is one of the key findings of the UNESCO Science Report towards 2030. A large number of countries are now incorporating science, technology and innovation in their national development agenda in order to make their economies less reliant on raw materials and more rooted in knowledge. Most research and development (R & D) is taking place in high-income countries, but innovation of some kind is now occurring across the full spectrum of income levels according to the first survey of manufacturing companies in 65 countries conducted by the UNESCO Institute for Statistics and summarized in this report. For many lower-income countries, sustainable development has become an integral part of their national development plans for the next 10-20 years. Among higher-income countries, a firm commitment to sustainable development is often coupled with the desire to maintain competitiveness in global markets that are increasingly leaning towards green technologies. The quest for clean energy and greater energy efficiency now figures among the research priorities of numerous countries. Written by more than 50 experts who are each covering the country or region from which they hail, the UNESCO Science Report towards 2030 provides more country-level information than ever before. The trends and developments in science technology and innovation policy and governance between 2009 and mid 2015 described here provide essential baseline information on the concerns and priorities of countries that could orient the implementation and drive the assessment of the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development in the years to come
