Please date my dad!

“So, how was the date?”

You probably think this is a parent asking the question to their child. But many children are now helping their single parents find love. In Chief Executive, a 12-year-old businessman was divorced last year; his daughter, 16-year-old Charlotte, doesn't want her dad to make up alone — her mom remarried four years ago, and Charlotte has a boyfriend.

Charlotte and Chad are very close. They often go out together in the evening. They're planning a trip to India for later in the year, and they've both been to Singapore Park. But Charlotte thinks that Chad needs a new machine, and he agrees.

"My dad is the perfect man," she says. "He's warm, he's generous, he knows how to look after a woman, how to hug a woman. He's a gentleman. He's always the one who pays on dates. He's romantic and he's fun. I don't want spending Friday and Saturday night with one dad and that was a lot." (The whole thing.)

Living in the 21st century is very different from when I first was young. Internet dating has changed everything. It's difficult now not to walk over to a woman and ask her, "Can I see you a minute?" In 1971, before when you had people had to have there was sometimes a "spark" a feeling of chemistry, destiny—you don't get that from someone you're meeting online.
