Medieval Of Blood:

Medieval Blood Bettina Bildhauer, 2006 Publisher Description Blood Gil Anidjar, 2014-05-06 Blood in Gil Anidjar's argument maps the singular history of Christianity. A category for historical analysis, blood can be seen through its literal and metaphorical uses as determining, sometimes even defining, Western culture, politics, and social practices and their wide-ranging incarnations in nationalism, capitalism, and law. Engaging with a variety of sources, Anidjar explores the presence and the absence, the making and unmaking of blood in philosophy and medicine, law and literature, and economic and political thought from ancient Greece to medieval Spain, from the Bible to Shakespeare and Melville. The prevalence of blood in the social, juridical, and political organization of the modern West signals that we do not live in a secular age into which religion could return. Flowing across multiple boundaries, infusing them with violent precepts that we must address, blood undoes the presumed oppositions between religion and politics, economy and theology, and kinship and race. It demonstrates that what we think of as modern is in fact imbued with Christianity. Christianity, Blood, fiercely argues, must be reconsidered beyond the boundaries of religion alone.

Between Dung and Blood Manuela Ceballos, 2025-12-30 Between Dung and Blood investigates the stories of two sixteenth-century saints: the Spanish Christian Teresa de Jesús and the Moroccan Sufi Sīd Riḥān al-Jānuw, both from families of converts. Through the stories of these saints, Manuela Ceballos reveals the roles played by blood and bodily pollution as substances and symbols in the religious and political fabric of the early modern Western Mediterranean. Drawing primarily on Arabic and Spanish sources, the author argues that in Morocco and Iberia, ideas about blood and bodily pollution helped shape processes of bodily differentiation as well as social hierarchies based on notions of ritual purity and impurity. Providing an inside look at the dynamics within Moroccan and Iberian societies as they grappled with the social and religious upheaval of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, Ceballos shows that the real and imagined border between geographies and religious traditions could at times be porous and conducive to shared beliefs.

Blood Will Out Janet Carsten, 2013-07-29 Unique in focus and international in scope, this book brings together 10 essays about the material, metaphorical, and symbolic importance of blood. An interdisciplinary study that unites the work of noted historians and anthropologists, it incorporates insights from recent work in symbolism, kinship studies, medical anthropology, the anthropology of religion, the sociological study of finance, and textual analysis. Covers topics such as Medieval European conceptions of blood, blood and the brain, blood and the cultural study of finance, and blood types, identity, and association in twentieth-century America.

Psychedelic Medieval Blood Rachael Lee, 2020-10-22 Women through history have always bled, and this was always viewed as dirty, contaminated, and something that should be kept in private. This ideology is still prevalent today with social media banning images of female bleeding as not part of the social community and the capitalisation upon women's bodies with the tampon tax, meaning it financially costs to be a woman. Christ's bleeding body was the blue print for medieval society.

however female blood and female bleeding is rarely explored In the later Middle Ages we witness a rise in medieval female mystics who drew upon parallels with Christ's bleeding body and concluding that to purge blood means simply to love This is evidenced in Julian of Norwich's Revelations of Divine Love and Margery Kempe's The Book of Margery Kempe Psychedelic Medieval Blood provides an introduction of how blood representations in the later Middle Ages in England was considered and understood by using medieval medical texts theology and the devotional literature of Julian of Norwich and Margery Kempe We need to expose and normalise this hidden history so that we can learn to respect and support the long suffering female body This book seeks to introduce and challenge how we consider female blood and asks the question can we learn from the medieval mystical approaches towards female blood and implement this positivity into our modern attitudes Cover artist Gareth John Day Editor Jon Lee Author Rachael Lee Dragon's Blood Romer Wilson,1926 A Great Effusion of Blood? Mark D. armies swept across the Middle East capturing major cities and setting up the Crusader States in the Levant. A sustained Western conquest of the region appeared utterly inevitable. Why then did the crusades ultimately fail? To answer this question, historian Nicholas Morton focuses on a period of bitter conflict between the Franks and their Turkish enemies when both factions were locked in a struggle for supremacy over the city of Aleppo. For the Franks, Aleppo was key to securing dominance over the entire region. For the Turks, this was nothing less than a battle for survival: without Aleppo, they would have little hope of ever repelling the European invaders. This conflict came to a head at the Battle of the Field of Blood in 1199, and the face of the Middle East was forever changed.

The Woman with the Blood Flow (Mark 5:24-34) Barbara Baert, Niels Schalley, 2014. This publication starts from a particular passage in the New Testament that tells the story of a woman with an issue of blood. The gospel relates how the so-called Haemorrhissa is healed the very moment she touches Christ's garment. This publication forms the first and so far the only interdisciplinary study of this particular biblical motif from an exegetical, art historical, and anthropological point of view. Contributing scholars interpret the impact of this biblical miracle on Christian texts, material culture, and healing archetypes in the Middle Ages and Early Modernity. The story and its Nachleben in literary commentaries and various iconographies unveil a particular energy in Christendom related to ideas about the female body, the role of textile, and the magical impact of touch. The Woman with the Blood Flow Mark 5:24-34 Narrative Iconic and Anthropological Spaces contributes to all research in the humanities concerned with gender, the sensorium, Judeo-Christian attitudes towards blood and taboo, and early Christian material culture in the East and West. Its trajectory ultimately reveals the crucial mystery at the heart of image making as such.
