

POWER SYSTEMS

X is powered by a micro-fusion fuel tank. His current energy level is indicated by an energy meter in the upper left corner of the screen. Each time X is damaged his energy meter will decrease. If all his energy is lost, X's fusion generator will go critical and explode. However, energy depletion can be avoided by collecting standard energy capsules. Using the capsules to increase the energy meter, X should be able to function indefinitely.

ENERGY METER

POWER CAPSULE

X also has the ability to carry up to four sub-tanks which will store an emergency energy supply. Once equipped with a sub-tank, any energy capsule which is collected while X's energy meter is full will automatically be transferred to a sub-tank. Energy can be transferred from the sub-tank to X's main energy meter by using the system status screen. Press the START button to activate the system status screen and then highlight a sub-tank. Once it is highlighted, press the Y button to drain the tank.

WEAPON SYSTEMS

The X-Buster and its integrated Variable Weapon System are a major step forward from earlier Mega Buster designs. Shot power has been increased and X is now able to switch to other weapon systems using the L and R buttons.

Weapons from deactivated robots can be adapted for use with the X-Buster. The weapon power level for the active special weapon is shown to the right of X's main energy meter. Each time the special weapon is fired, the weapon's power level will decrease. By collecting weapon capsules, X can recharge the current special weapon and avoid a total loss of special weapon power. If X is not currently using a special weapon when he collects a weapon capsule, the energy will automatically be allocated to the weapon with the lowest energy level.
