

Narrative Essay - A Lesson Learnt

Why is this mathematics exercise tougher than usual? It is taking me forever to finish it even though I started at eight o' clock. Now it is already 10 o'clock and I am not even halfway through. I kept glancing at my computer at the corner of my room. It looked so inviting, making me unsure whether to continue with my homework or to just stop and go online. It took me exactly two seconds to make up my mind. I am going online!

Obviously from my decision, you know that I am an internet freak. I am willing to do anything including delaying my mathematics homework, even though I know very well my teacher, Mr. Ismail would scream murder. May God help those who dare to mess up with him! Well, I may be a self-confessed internet addict but at least I am computer literate! I absolutely adore computers and my greatest love has got to be the Internet Relay Chat (IRC). This is because it gives me a sense of freedom and exhilaration, unlike anything I have experienced before. You can be a supermodel an astronaut or the local zookeeper and no one would even know the difference.

When I sat in front of the monitor and clicked on the IRC programme, a short but unique name caught my eye,'Neo'. I said "hi" and introduced myself. I was ecstatic when Neo answered and turned out to be a great conversationalist and we hit off immediately. We started talking about everything and I felt as though I had found a friend. We talked for hours and I was surprised to find out that Neo was a real person. He was a student like me and we had a lot in common. We talked about our studies, our hobbies, and our dreams. I was amazed to find out that Neo was a real person and not just a computer program. We talked for hours and I was surprised to find out that Neo was a real person. He was a student like me and we had a lot in common. We talked about our studies, our hobbies, and our dreams. I was amazed to find out that Neo was a real person and not just a computer program.

The next day was a Friday and I was feeling very happy. I had found a friend and I was looking forward to talking to him again. I was surprised to find out that Neo was a real person and not just a computer program. We talked for hours and I was surprised to find out that Neo was a real person. He was a student like me and we had a lot in common. We talked about our studies, our hobbies, and our dreams. I was amazed to find out that Neo was a real person and not just a computer program.
