It gives me great pleasure to write a foreword to Mr Sen's excellent book and for two reasons in particular. In the first place in producing it Mr Sen has done something which I have long felt needed to be done and which I at one time had ambitions to do myself. When over thirty years ago and after some years of practice at the Bar I first entered the legal side of the British Foreign Service I had not been working for long in the Foreign Office before I conceived the idea of writing or at any rate compiling a book to which in my own mind I gave the title of A Manual of Foreign Office Law. This work had I ever produced it in the form in which I visualised it could probably not have been published consistently with the requirements of official discretion. But this did not worry me as I was only contemplating something for private circulation within the Service and in Government circles. Mr Sen's aim has been broader and more public spirited than mine was but its basis is essentially the same.
