Memoirs From The House Of The Dead:

The House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 2004-02-05 In January 1850 Dostoyevsky was sent to a remote Siberian prison camp for his part in a political conspiracy The four years he spent there startlingly re created in The House of the Dead were the most agonizing of his life In this fictionalized account he recounts his soul destroying incarceration through the cool detached tones of his narrator Aleksandr Petrovich Goryanchikov the daily battle for survival the wooden plank beds the cabbage soup swimming with cockroaches his strange family of boastful ugly cruel convicts Yet The House of the Dead is far more than a work of documentary realism it is also a powerful novel of redemption describing one man s spiritual and moral death and the miracle of his gradual reawakening

Notes from a Dead House Fyodor Dostoevsky, 2016-03-22 In 1849 Dostoevsky was sentenced to four years at hard labor in a Siberian prison camp for participating in a socialist discussion group The novel he wrote after his release based on notes he smuggled out not only brought him fame but also founded the tradition of Russian prison writing Notes from a Dead House sometimes translated as The House of the Dead depicts brutal punishments feuds betrayals and the psychological effects of confinement but it also reveals the moments of comedy and acts of kindness that Dostoevsky witnessed among his fellow prisoners To get past government censors Dostoevsky made his narrator a common law criminal rather than a political prisoner but the perspective is unmistakably his own His incarceration was a transformative experience that nourished all his later works particularly Crime and Punishment Dostoevsky s narrator discovers that even among the most debased criminals there are strong and beautiful souls His story is finally a profound meditation on freedom The prisoner himself knows that he is a prisoner but no brands no fetters will make him forget that he is a human being

Memoirs from the House of the Dead Fyodor Dostoyevsky, 2001 In this almost documentary account of his own experiences of penal servitude in Serbia Dostoevsky describes the physical and mental suffering of the convicts the squalor and the degradation in relentless detail The intricate procedure whereby the men strip for the bath without removing their ten pound leg fetters is an extraordinary tour de force compared by Turgenev to passages from Dante s Inferno Terror and resignation the rampages of a psychopath the brief serenity interlude of Christmas Day are evoked by Dostoevsky writing several years after his release with a strikingly uncharacteristic detachment For this reason House of the Dead is certainly the least Dostoevskian of his works yet paradoxically it ranks among his great masterpieces say it seemed to me that life in prison was much easier than on the journey I had fancied it would be Though the prisoners wore fetters they walked freely about the prison swore sang songs did work on their own account smoked even drank vodka though very few of them and at night some of them played cards The labour for instance seemed to me by no means so hard so penal and only long afterwards I realized that the hardness the penal character of the
