Le Dernier Homme De Fukushima:

Le Dernier homme de Fukushima Antonio Pagnotta, 2013-03-07T00:00:00+01:00 Tomioka était une ville tranquille de la côte est du Japon où vivaient avant le 12 mars 2011 16 000 habitants aujourd'hui il n'en reste qu'un Naoto Matsumura. Tomioka a été vacuée au lendemain du tsunami en raison de la fusion du cœur de trois réacteurs de la centrale de Daiichi propriété de Tepco. En dépit des efforts et du courage des ouvriers les réacteurs continuent de cracher de la radioactivité. La catastrophe de Fukushima marque la fin de l'utopie nucléaire et le début d'une catastrophe écologique qui va durer des siècles. Les habitants ont été vacués hors de la zone rouge abandonnant animaux domestiques et animaux de ferme. L'ordre d'évacuation initialement de 48 heures a été prolongé. Il sera permanent. Matsumura lui a refusé de quitter la ferme où sa famille vit depuis cinq générations pour manifester sa colère et sa résistance au géant de l'industrie nucléaire. Il ne calcule pas les doses qu'il reçoit quotidiennement et met un point d'honneur à nourrir les bêtes encore vivantes. Il parle franc et pointe l'opérateur nucléaire dont la toute puissance est palpable dans le pays. Rapidement la presse étrangère s'est intéressée à ce dernier homme debout. Le parc nucléaire du Japon est le 3^e au monde avec 54 centrales derrière les États-Unis et la France. 58 Tepco le shogun du nucléaire continue d'agir dangereusement soutenu par l'État. Leurs choix sont d'abord économiques. Ils s'agit pour eux de sauver le pays de la faillite n'importe quel coût humain. Mais la résistance s'organise. Les mesures de Fukushima s'indignent. Nami, un lapin sans oreilles est un symbole du Japonais en révolte passive. Il ne veut plus rien entendre. Matsumura dans sa lutte incarne la terre contre le nucléaire.

Storying the Ecocatastrophe Helena Duffy, Katarina Leppänen, 2024-05-31 How do writers and artists represent the climate catastrophe so that their works stir audiences to political action or at least raise their environmental awareness without however appearing didactic? Storying the Ecocatastrophe attempts to answer this question while interrogating the potential of narrative to become a viable political force. The collection of essays achieves this by examining the representational strategies and ideological goals of contemporary cultural productions about climate change. These productions have been created across different genres such as the traditional novel, dance performance, solarpunk, economic report, collage and space opera as well as across different languages and cultures. The volume's twelve chapters demonstrate that rising temperatures, erratic weather, extinction of species, depletion of resources and coastal erosion and flooding are an effect of our abusive relationship with nature. They also show that our use of nuclear power, extraction of natural resources and extensive farming including heavy reliance on pesticides intersect with intrahuman violence as fleshed out by heteropatriarchy, racism, neo colonialism and capitalism. They finally argue that human activity has indirectly contributed to other contemporary crises namely the migrant crisis and the spread of contagious diseases such as Covid 19. Apocalypse TV Michael G. Cornelius, Sherry Ginn, 2020-03-19 The end of the world may be upon us but it certainly is taking its sweet time playing out The walkers on The Walking Dead have been walking for nearly a decade There are now dozens of apocalyptic television shows and we use the end times to describe everything from domestic politics and international conflict to the weather and our views of the future This collection of new essays asks what it means to live in a world inundated with representations of the apocalypse Focusing on such series as The Walking Dead The Strain Battlestar Galactica Doomsday Preppers Westworld The Handmaid's Tale they explore how the serialization of the end of the world allows for a closer examination of the disintegration of humanity while it happens Do these shows prepare us for what is to come Do they spur us to action Might they even be causing the apocalypse

The Dead City Paul Dobraszczyk, 2017-06-30 The Dead City unearths meanings from such depictions of ruination and decay looking at representations of both thriving cities and ones which are struggling abandoned or simply in transition It reveals that ruination presents a complex opportunity to envision new futures for a city whether that is by rewriting its past or throwing off old assumptions and proposing radical change Seen in a certain light for example urban ruin and decay are a challenge to capitalist narratives of unbounded progress They can equally imply that power structures thought to be deeply ingrained are temporary contingent and even fragile Examining ruins in Chernobyl Detroit London Manchester and Varosha this book demonstrates that how we discuss and depict urban decline is intimately connected to the histories economic forces power structures and communities of a given city as well as to conflicting visions for its future

(Eco)Anxiety in Nuclear Holocaust Fiction and Climate Fiction Dominika Oramus, 2023-07-07 Eco Anxiety in Nuclear Holocaust Fiction and Climate Fiction Doomsday Clock Narratives demonstrates that disaster fiction nuclear holocaust and climate change alike allows us to unearth and anatomise contemporary psychodynamics and enables us to identify pretraumatic stress as the common denominator of seemingly unrelated types of texts These Doomsday Clock Narratives argue that earth's demise is soon and certain They are set after some catastrophe and depict people waiting for an even worse catastrophe to come References to geology are particularly important in descriptions of the landscape the emphasis falls on waste and industrial bric à brac which is seen through the eyes of a future posthuman archaeologist Their protagonists have the uncanny feeling that the countdown has already started and they are coping with both traumatic memories and pretraumatic stress Readings of novels by Walter M Miller Nevil Shute John Christopher J G Ballard George Turner Maggie Gee Paolo Bacigalupi Ruth Ozeki and Yoko Tawada demonstrate that the authors are both indebted to a century old tradition and inventively looking for new ways of expressing the pretraumatic stress syndrome common in contemporary society This book is written for an academic audience postgraduates researchers and academics specialising in British Literature American Literature and Science Fiction Studies
