

The Making of the Fittest: Natural Selection and Adaptation

LESSON STUDENT HANDOUT

PROCEDURE

1. Watch the short film The Making of the Fittest: Natural Selection and Adaptation.
2. Using the DNA nucleotide sequence in the gene tables (page 3), determine the complementary messenger RNA (mRNA) sequence for the portion of the Mclr gene provided. (Note: You are only transcribing a small portion of the DNA sequence for this protein. The actual gene contains 951 base pairs.) The numbers above some of the columns indicate amino acid positions in the protein sequence. Also indicated is whether the sequence codes for an extracellular, intracellular, or transmembrane part of the protein.
3. Using the mRNA sequence determined in Step 2, determine the resulting amino acid sequence of the MC1R protein. (Note: This is only a portion of the 317 amino acids in the entire protein. The numbers above some of the columns in the tables indicate amino acid positions in the protein sequence.) You may use the genetic code chart provided in your textbook or the one on page 7 of this handout.
4. There are five mutations in the dark-color Mclr mutant gene. Compare the DNA sequence of the wild-type Mclr gene with the DNA sequence of the mutant Mclr gene. Indicate the locations of the five mutations by circling the five single DNA nucleotides that are mutated in the mutant Mclr gene table.
5. From the introduction, determine whether each of these mutations is a silent, missense, or nonsense mutation.
 - a. Using the mutant Mclr gene data, shade in the columns (including DNA, mRNA, and amino acid) in the mutant table that contain a silent mutation. Use a blue colored pencil to do this.
 - b. Likewise, use a red colored pencil to shade in the columns that contain a missense mutation.
 - c. Shade any columns that contain nonsense mutations by using a green colored pencil.
6. Answer the questions following the gene tables.

Baby Dinosaurs on the Ark? Janet Kellogg Ray, 2021-09-09 A scientific look at creationism from a former creationist A significant number of Americans especially evangelical Christians believe Earth and humankind were created in their present form sometime in the last 10 000 years or so the rationale being that this is presumably the story told in the book of Genesis Within that group any threatening scientific evidence that suggests otherwise is rejected or when possible retrofitted into a creationist worldview But can this uncomfortable blend of biblical literalism and pseudoscience hold up under scrutiny Is it tenable to believe that the Grand Canyon was formed not millions of years ago by gradual erosion but merely thousands of years ago by the Great Flood Were there really baby dinosaurs with Noah on his ark Janet Kellogg Ray a science educator who grew up a creationist doesn't want other Christians to have to do the exhausting mental gymnastics she did earlier in her life Working through the findings of a range of fields including geology paleontology and biology she shows how a literal interpretation of the book of Genesis simply doesn't mesh with what we know to be reality But as someone who remains a committed Christian Ray also shows how an acceptance of the theory of evolution is not necessarily an acceptance of atheism and how God can still be responsible for having created the world even if it wasn't in a single momentary miraculous event
